Foreword

... The game is over. The team may not have won, but several thousand fans shout their support from the stands. Suddenly the noise of the crowd fades, and Knights rise for the proud, solemn singing of the Alma Mater: "... Our love will be your glory ..."

... It's 3:30. Three thousand students are suddenly in a hurry as they flash-flood out the main doors. Nearing the exits, the mass abruptly parts, carefully sidestepping the marble-tiled Knight's Head in the center of the floor ...

... Class is over. Students hastily shuffle books and purses and look expectantly at the teacher. She nods, and they file out. No bell rings ...

As the "new school" atmosphere dissolves, Northwest Classen settles into a regular pattern. We now cherish the traditions established in our earlier years, and in these traditions we find the unifying force which gives NWC its character. We now have a past, and while it would be pushing the point to speak of defending the honor of our "forefathers," we do sense our obligation to those who have gone before us, blazing the trail, to ever wear with dignity "The Emblem of Proud Knighthood ..."

November 22, when President Kennedy was assassinated, Knights joined their fellow Americans in a thirty-day mourning period. Northwest Classen's flag was lowered to half mast on that tragic, fateful day.

The long-awaited $281,989 addition makes the beautiful N.W.C. campus even more impressive.

Beauty of Northwest's Campus Inspires

Seen from across the patio, the new wing seems already a customary part of the school.

A crate-shaped bulk of concrete and steel stands void, unmoving. Rows of identical bricks stacked purposelessly enclose expanses of impersonal stone corridors. The building is a lifeless vacuum.

Without her people Northwest Classen has no character, no personality, but each person who comes in contact with the school contributes a part of himself to her identity:

... The swaggering senior boy with polished Cordovans and a slouch to his walk.

... The frosted-haired cheerleader, always in the glare of the spotlight, smiling, cheering, setting examples.

... The quiet, unnoticed girl in your English class who never speaks, but occasionally glances shyly at you.

... The state legislator who is a guest at Student Council meeting, and speaks in a thick Okie accent of fine, faraway things.

... The cotton-headed crown bearer who grins with flagrant indifference at the Sports Queen coronation.

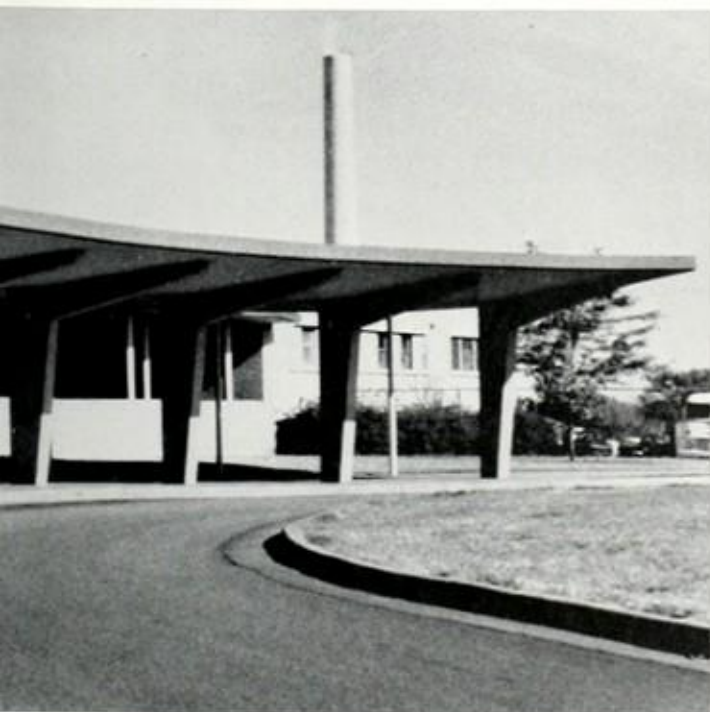

... The sullen, silent "loner" whose face betrays his inner rebellion.

... The slight, clear-eyed young teacher, battling reality with a pocketful of shiny ideals.

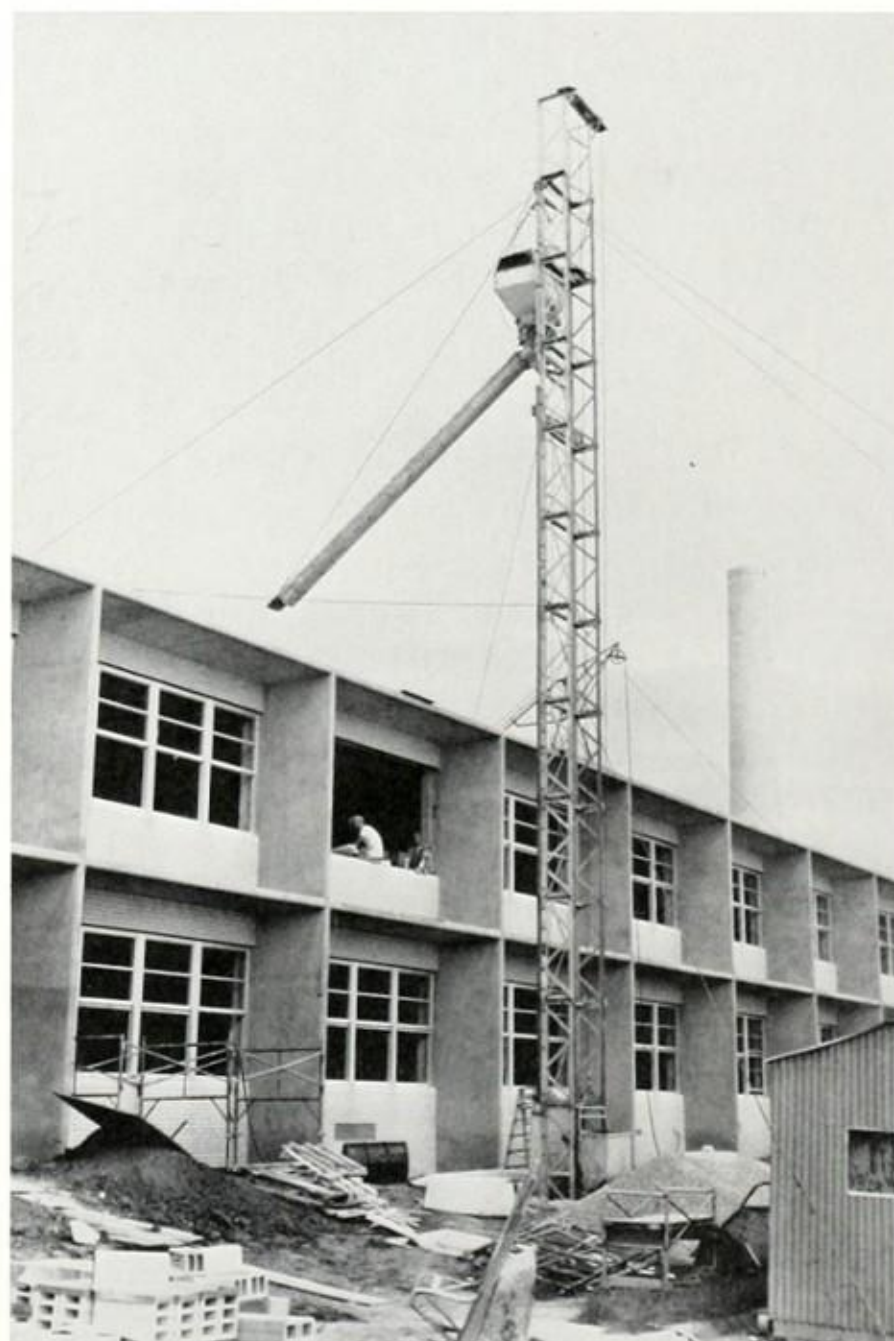

... The stout, steel-haired woman who can never remember your name.

... The Harvard-haired school leader, part-time diplomat fulfilling responsibilities.

These people, and all the others who pass through the realm of Knightland, add depth and breadth to her character, give her warmth. And here lies the still greater paradox: every person who brings her something of himself takes away much, much more.

The months of planning and construction finally forced the new addition into reality.

Spells Success in Uniform Drive

Nine years of existence have weathered the blatant gold of NWC's brick. They have worn barely perceptible traces in the rigid marble steps and caused the paint to crack a little.

But these years have also meant achievement—the building of a widespread reputation of accomplishment, so that the name "Northwest Classen" is spoken with pride and heard with respect.

Never satisfied with the easily attainable, Knights have always reached out for that "something better," only achieved by the persevering. The state and national honors received each year by NWC students surprise none of us: we do no less than our best, and we expect the same of others. When we fail, we know it was not because we didn't make every effort to succeed.

A spirit of unity is often the motivating force for Northwest Classen students, whether it be in the enthusiastic furor of a cheering section, or the quiet pride of reading "Northwest Classen" in the newspaper.

Northwest boasts the nation's largest P.T.S.A. group, 89.1% student support of the publications program, and 673 initial "drops," denoting twice that many "steadies."

The strength of this "togetherness" was displayed admirably last year in the month-long drive for new band uniforms which netted over $12,000 in the largest-scale money-raising campaign in school history.

Summer, as near-drought conditions threaten the state.

A pensive Robert Roark discovers that hours of hard work lie behind the glory of being Student Council president.

Northwest's first play of the year, "Life With Father," was seen by a near-capacity crowd of 1872. Enacting one of the scenes are Mike Pulliam, Randy James, Sandra Walling, Craig Busey, Ann Gibbs, Doug Chew, and Bob Mayer.

Art students take advantage of beautiful October weather to sketch from nature on the patio.

"Sharing" Widens World of NWC

... The houselights dim. Backstage several dozen people wait, tense. In these few seconds, excitement explodes in the deafening silence. The curtain parts ...

... Autumn screams out everywhere; it can be felt in the thin, brittle air, in its snow-cone freshness. It's one of those flame and ice-days, beautifully new and distant. The art student reaches for his water colors ...

... The 707 roars to a stop with an aching, piercing wail. Expectantly, students shift toward the gate. A boy from New Zealand descends the boarding ramp. Behind him is home, school, friends. Ahead of him lie the same things, but also incalculable experiences. He smiles ...

In a sea of misunderstanding, Northwest Classen students seek vital communication. They attempt self-expression through speech, drama, music, art, writing. In the absorbing world of youth, they try to assemble and interpret the things they take in with their ink-blotter minds.

To share a feeling is to double it, so they share, giving of themselves to others.

From these other people, they receive new impressions—vague, swimming ideas unrelated to themselves. The world is at once sharply defined and dimly distant. It slaps them in the face with its relentless reality, but remains lazily, maddeningly aloof and indifferent to their searching, pleading questions. They shrink from the unknown, but grasp at the new and different.

These paradoxes of youth concern them, make them unsure, and they redouble their efforts to communicate as the need for reassurance from others increases. Developing real friendships gives insight, and as relationships begin to mature, they find words woefully inadequate.

Knights and Ladies greet AFS Exchange Students Ted Hansen and Wally Koeneke with a traditionally warm welcome.

Faculty Brings

Curriculum to Life

Superintendent,

DR. JACK F. PARKER
Superintendent of Schools

Dr. Parker, at 37, is one of the youngest superintendents in the Oklahoma City school system's history. Under his three-year direction, tremendous progress has been made in school construction and in the installation of new facilities. Improvements in curriculum have kept pace with other developments.

Dr. Parker has helped to promote the establishment of new teaching methods, the expanding of educational television and the development of the entire instructional program. A highly successful teacher evaluation and training program has been launched.

Proof that Oklahoma City's schools are big business is evidenced in the fact that the mushrooming school system serves over 72,000 students in 106 schools. These schools are staffed by 2,684 certified personnel and 880 secretaries and maintenance men. Total budget for the Oklahoma City school district is $22,000,000.

"... and this is the great Northwest Classen," Dr. Parker seems to be saying as he points to NWC on the Oklahoma City School District map.

Board of Education Serve Faithfully

MRS. WARREN WELCH
Ward I

MR. MELVIN P. ROGERS
Ward II

MR. W. F. LOTT
Ward III

Oklahoma City's schools are able to maintain their high standards because of the unselfish dedication of the members of the School Board who serve without pay. On them falls the responsibility of governing the city school system.

They must be capable of recognizing needs and making decisions that keep the schools in competition with the best. They, too, are the deciding factor in the establishment of new teaching methods, new courses to be offered, or in adding a new school to Oklahoma City's expanding educational program.

The five board members, elected by school patrons, include a housewife, attorney, industrialist, experimental farm superintendent and banker.

Four of the members are elected for four-year terms; the other one is a member-at-large, who serves two years.

MR. FOSTER ESTES

MR. PHIL C. BENNETT
Vice President
Member-at-Large

Apparently pleased with her inspection of the new addition is Mrs. Warren Welch, Ward I board member and NWC patron. She served as board president last year.

Principals

MR. J. FRANK MALONE
Principal

The greatest influence at Northwest Classen is its principal, Mr. J. Frank Malone. Never too busy to counsel with an individual, he has earned the lasting respect and admiration of students and teachers alike.

Mr. Malone is well-known in educational circles throughout the country as he has held top committee posts in the National Secondary School Principals' Association and the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He has served as secretary of the state chapter of Secondary School Principals since 1955. At least a dozen civic and professional groups have appointed him to key committee assignments.

When this year's enrollment exceeded the estimate by about 100, administration was challenged to do extra planning to take care of these additional students. Because of the efficient, coordinated staff organization here, Mr. Malone was able to effect a smooth handling of this increase.

This was but one example of the emphasis on "team effort" which he stresses in his philosophy of school administration.

The Malone's back yard is a delightful spot where family and friends frequently congregate. Mr. and Mrs. Malone share enthusiasm for gardening; rose culture tops the list of Mr. Malone's hobbies.

Provide Leadership in Team Effort

Mrs. Laurretta Stauffer, secretary to Mr. Malone, Mrs. Maurita Yost, secretary to the assistant principals, and Mr. Leon Bruner, assistant principal, check attendance reports.

Two new assistant principals joined the administrative staff this year. In addition to helping formulate policy concerning the welfare of the student body, the two men have special responsibilities in school administration. Mr. Bruner works with the department of research at the Central Office on all problems relating to accounting. Other assignments include preparing daily bulletins and making master schedules. Mr. Wedel is in charge of locker and parking space assignments, safety education, and drop-out study. He is also business manager of the Round Table. Functioning as a team, both men supervise student activities and help teachers and students with individual problems. They work with the principal on new innovations in programs, with the idea of developing new techniques, procedures and plans for improvement.

"How's this for personal service?" asks Mike Eischen, as he attaches a parking sticker to Mr. Wedel's car. Mr. Wedel helped school safety committee members to implement new parking procedures.

"There just aren't any classes left to enroll you in," Counselor Wallace advises Sally Stammer. Changing schedules is a big headache for counselors each semester.

Completely engulfed in IBM sheets, Mrs. Ola Mae Oakes searches for student data. Extensive records are kept on every student.

Increased enrollment required extra planning as counselors coordinated efforts to reach every student. In addition, each counselor regularly attends to special responsibilities.

Mr. Weinert is guidance coordinator and helps to coordinate activities, such as schedule changes, secretarial help, and work of the registrar plus supervising the IBM schedule.

Educational information is Miss Wester's specialty. She communicates with faculty and students about guidance materials and test information. Mr. Mitchell is responsible for vocational information, specifically for channeling information to students concerning vocations, scholarships, and appointments with college representatives.

Mrs. Wakely works with guidance information related to individual records such as cumulative records, home-bound study, parent-teacher conferences and correspondence study.

Development of a program of orientation for new students at NW is Mrs. Oakes' concern. She also works closely with special education and vocational rehabilitation, as well as the PTSA. Mr. Wallace is responsible for all testing and coordinates research.

All school activities and projects are closely supervised by Miss Owen, Activities Director. Through her office, clubs and organizations schedule events on the school calendar. She directs assemblies, organizes social events, and works closely with PTSA.

One of her chief responsibilities is sponsoring the Student Council, which maintains its place as leader of Northwest Classen's student body.

All 3,000 students spend time in the school library. This year library hours were changed to 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Over 1,851 new volumes were added, making a total of more than 15,897 books of all kinds and subscriptions to 52 magazines on the library shelves. Five donors contributed books in commemoration of National Library Week November 18-22.

The central office is the hub of the school. Serving as a "general information bureau" is a side line with Mrs. Harris, who checks attendance, operates the switchboard, provides supplies, and assists with all school routines. Mrs. Phillips is the official school registrar.

Mrs. Taylor has the enormous responsibility of checking in fee money, keeping all school accounts, and writing checks for bills. She also sells tickets to games.

The vocational rehabilitation counselor's role is to provide services to students who are determined eligible by trained specialists. Mr. Heath serves Northeast and John Marshall as well as NWC. Co-op training is that part of the program where students work or train on a part-time basis, earning school credit in work or training stations.

Harmony and color complementing the academic courses in the students' lives is provided by the art department. It offers a full curriculum, with special courses such as fine arts, fashion design, ceramics, sculpture, and commercial art.

Because of increased enrollment in art, a part-time instructor was added this year.

NWC's art department is involved in practically all school projects. In addition to helping with decorations for activities, artists prepare or are responsible for approving all the posters that are displayed in the building.

Representatives from the department are frequently asked to display their handiwork outside school. Miss Urmston's fashion design students exhibited fashions from their class at OU on September 21.

Mrs. Willie Murray, former NWC teacher, was persuaded to return part-time to help take care of overcrowded art classes. Jimmie Kennard gets pointers on her weaving project.

Readying the fashions they displayed for the State Administrators Conference at OU September 21 are designers Jan Harriss, De Miner, Suzanne Gilbert, Rosemary Burton, and Dona Hollingsworth.

Convincing students that English is invaluable as a tool for learning and living is the major concern of the English department. Teachers are constantly striving to improve communication skills by using new methods and teaching techniques.

This past summer Miss Taylor served on the instructional staff of a structural linguistics workshop, which was attended by several NWC English teachers. Others participated in workshops designed to help improve team teaching.

English teachers divided into committees this year to write a new course of study for each grade level. They met with counselors before the first semester to select accelerated students for Honors classes. Special attention was also given basic classes.

English teachers are active in professional organizations. Miss Truax serves on the state Board of Directors of the English Council and as secretary of the State Language Arts Curriculum Committee. Mr. Ohmart is an officer of the Oklahoma City English Council.

Publication staffs attended monthly meetings of the OCIPA, where NWC scribes held three offices, including the presidency. Affiliation with National and Columbia Scholastic Press Associations was maintained. Journalists convened on the campus at OU for fall and spring meetings of the Oklahoma Interscholastic Press Association.

In the spring, each Journalism I class annually produces an issue of the Shield.

The stage crew, composed of stagecraft classes, contributed to all school plays as well as to all school productions by constructing scenery and creating special lighting and sound effects.

Beginning speech classes present demonstrations, pantomimes, and dramatic interpretations. The memory work required for class and tournament participation is helpful in other aspects of school life.

At the October 25 O.E.A. meeting, Mrs. Allred was elected public relations head of the Executive Council of the Oklahoma Speech Association.

New Mathematics Approach Challenges

Mathematics teachers are constantly striving to keep abreast of new procedures in the teaching of mathematics. NWC teachers have recently completed detailed courses of study for each level, culminating a research program comprised of representatives of business and industry as well as of the teaching profession.

Mathematics students have a wide choice of courses, ranging from algebra, the newly installed SMSG (School Mathematics Study Group) geometry, trigonometry, and matrix algebra, to an advanced study of probability and statistical inference.

In advanced classes concerned with the higher forms of mathematics, the basic relation of math to other sciences and branches of knowledge is stressed and developed. These courses provide training in reasoning and in perception of spatial and numerical relationships.

In general and basic mathematics classes, students learn fundamental processes and skills which are essential to all people in modern society.

Several teachers hold offices in professional groups. Mrs. Davidson is president of the Oklahoma City Pilot Club, composed of professional women leaders, and is a member of the board of directors of the state mathematics division of OEA. She and Mrs. Chesher are members of the advisory committee for new state adopted texts.

The mathematics faculty boasts 100% membership in the Oklahoma City, State and National Councils of Teachers of Mathematics.

"This will teach you to keep your shirttail tucked in," Mrs. Ecton admonishes her sixth hour student, John Siegel.

Displaying their large assortment of souvenirs, Miss Margie Smith, physical education teacher, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kendall, German instructor, compare notes on their summer trips to Europe. AFS'er Finds Language No Barrier

Language, which was once as much of a barrier between peoples as distance, is now rapidly becoming less a problem. Students find language a challenge in today's modern age, since communication means the difference between friendly or hostile relations between peoples of the world. The increase of world travel and use of various languages in movies and modern novels has facilitated greatly the ease with which students can master the languages.

Students are offered a varied language program which includes Latin, Spanish, French, and German. Not only are grammar and pronunciation studied, but also the literature, culture, and origin of the language.

At least two years of foreign language is required for admission to many colleges; some require as much as five years. NWC offers four years in all languages.

Every summer, language teachers avail themselves of scholarships to improve teaching techniques. The past summer Mrs. Kendall attended the Stanford Summer Institute at Bad Boll, Germany, and Mrs. Skouge traveled to Guadalajara, Mexico, for an eight week second level language institute, sponsored by NDEA (National Defense Education Act).

Miss Von Tungeln also traveled in Mexico, where she visited Mrs. Skouge in the middle of July. Mrs. Creekmore and Mrs. Warram accompanied the Oklahoma delegation, including eight NWC students, to the Junior Classical League National convention at Lawrence, Kansas, August 11.

A combination Latin and English class was formed this year under the direction of Mrs. Warram. Grammar and literature were coordinated in the two-hour course.

Scientific Knowledge Enriches Lives

Behind the Bunsen burner flames, test tubes, and microscopes, NWC's industrious scientists work fervently to meet the challenge of the space age.

The growing demand for scientists has triggered an expanded science program here as well as in schools throughout the nation.

Extensive equipment has been added this year as well as an additional teacher.

Courses offered include biology, where students develop an understanding of their place among living things, and how they are related to their environment. More ambitious students take chemistry, physics, and science seminar. Life science is required for freshmen. Biology and life science classes are received from the broadcasting center.

Science students take advantage of facilities outside of school, often taking tours of local installations having scientific interest.

In laboratory work, which accompanies all theory courses, students can discover and prove for themselves that the laws in the book actually work. And there, abstract ideas become clear through practical demonstrations.

Two years of electronics is offered, enabling interested students to investigate more thoroughly the constantly changing field of science and technology. A far reaching field of study within the greater area of physics, electronics has no known boundaries.

"What kind of formula is this?" Jane Stangeland rests her tired feet while contemplating a chemistry formula.

By looking back into the past, students gain appreciation and understanding of their heritage, helping them to recognize their freedoms and responsibilities.

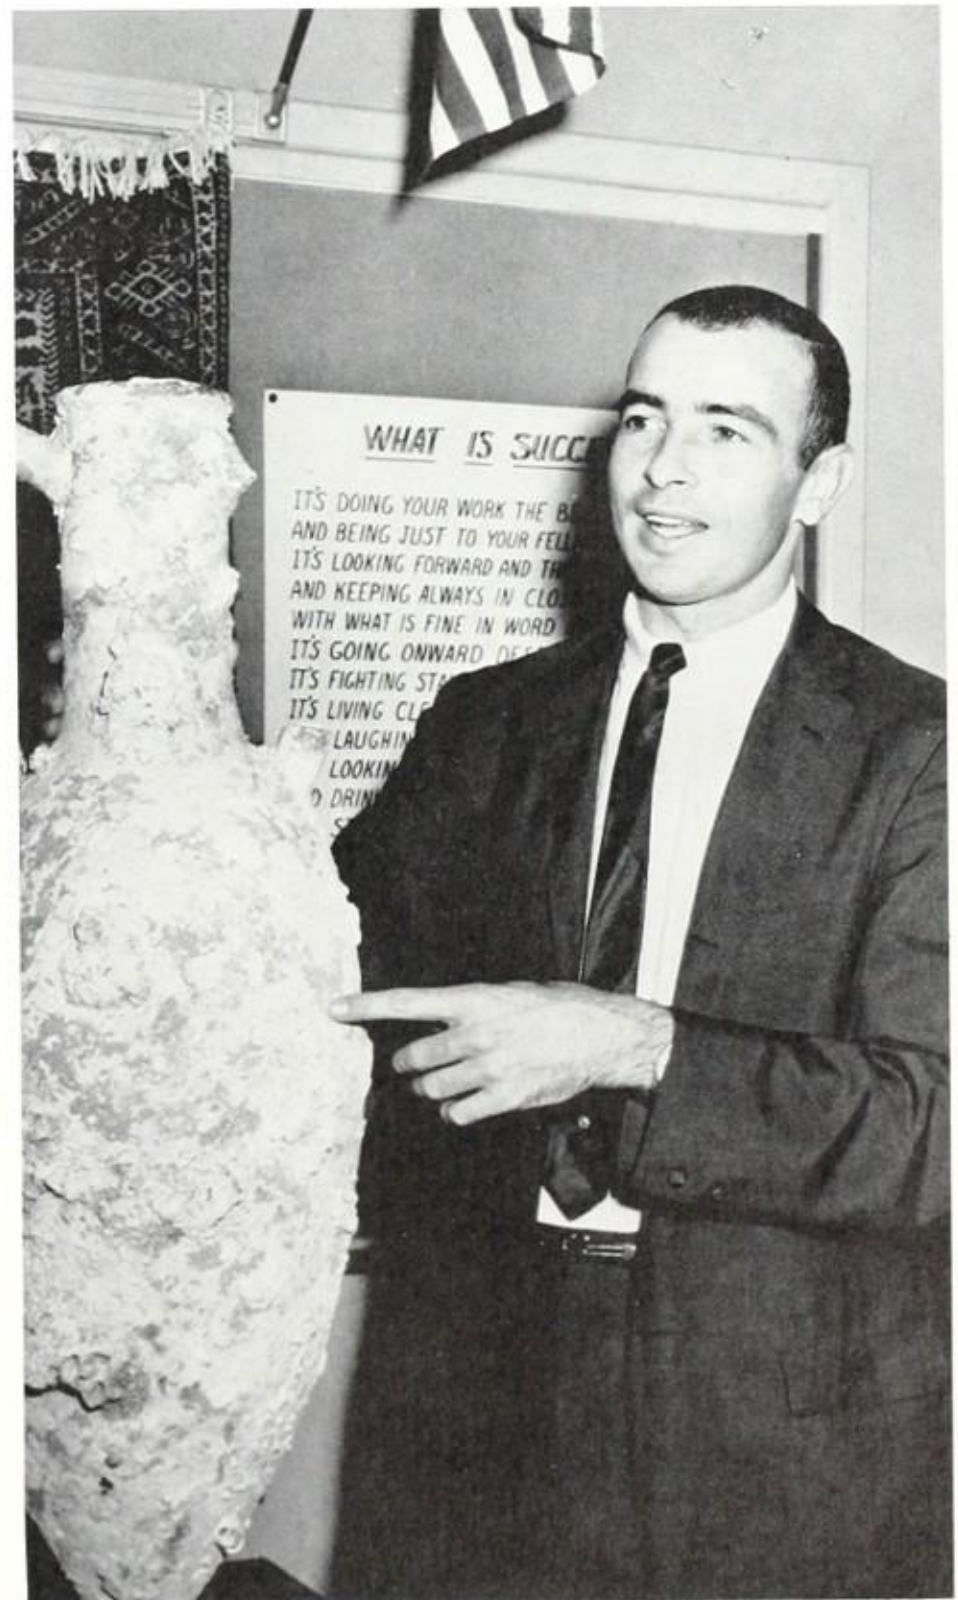

Ninth graders take Oklahoma History; sophomores are required to take U.S. History, and juniors, world history. Other courses offered are world problems, government, and psychology.

Interest is stimulated in government by guest speakers. Senator Cleeta John Rogers and Speaker of the House, J. D. McCarty were among the visitors who spoke to classes. Psychology classes were treated to a demonstration of lie detectors by an F.B.I. investigator.

Objective, thorough study of political parties and forms of government is included in the government course of study.

Team and television for social studies classes challenge students and teachers alike, requiring expert listening and note taking.

Stress is also placed on preparing citizens of tomorrow for the many problems they will encounter in the future. Filmstrips, slides, maps, and current publications are utilized by teachers in their presentation of the cultural and historical background of the various countries studied. Several teachers who have traveled abroad showed slides to their classes.

"So, now what do we do?" Barbara Martin and Elaine Allen are confronted with problems in their business machines class.

Avid sports fan, Mrs. Susan Dixon, not only attended all of NWC's football games, but braved cold weather to watch Knight practice sessions after school each day.

During National Education Week (November 11-15) students took over teaching duties one day. Tish Ellis uses the new overhead projector to direct Mrs. Spann's shorthand class.

Equipment, Procedures for 1,281 Students

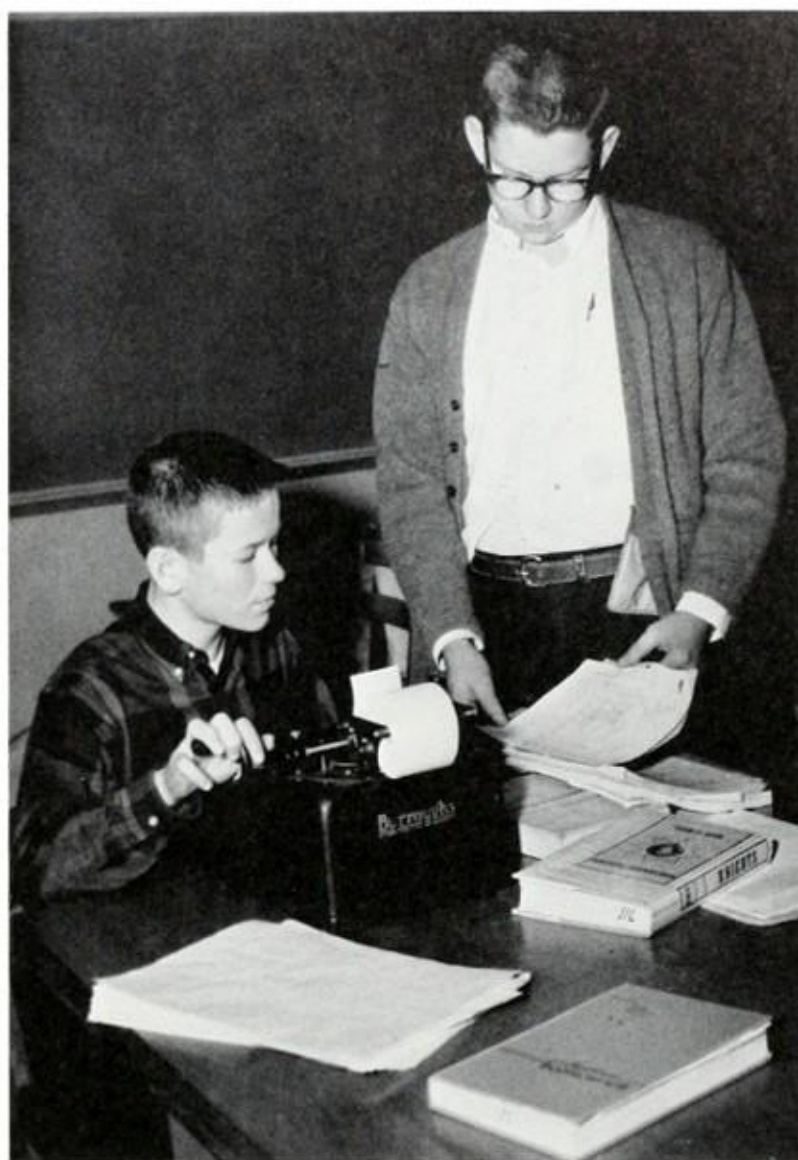

Vast strides have been made by the business education department this year for the benefit of the 1281 students enrolled in business courses.

New techniques and methods have been developed to utilize new electronic laboratory equipment installed in beginning typewriting and shorthand classes. In typewriting, this has made possible large group instruction with tapes and has released the teacher to give more individual assistance to the students.

In shorthand, overhead projectors have proven a valuable aid in clarifying instruction. The laboratory equipment in the shorthand classes is used to speed up dictation rates, and provide individual advancement in dictation practice.

A secretary was provided for the large classes in typewriting so that the voluminous paper work would not burden the teacher.

For the first time, counselors divided the students who had had beginning typewriting in junior high school into an individual group so that they might have advanced training.

Focusing on columns of figures in bookkeeping class are David Loveland and Ken Craig.

Individual advancement in shorthand dictation practice is made possible by the use of tapes. Paula Hallman adjusts the recorder controls.

To meet the increasing demand for home economics courses, an additional teacher was added to the department this year, and course work was adjusted.

That being a good homemaker is a rewarding and highly skilled achievement is an accepted fact today. No longer do the duties of a mother and housewife seem unimportant and monotonous.

Modern homemaking classes are designed to prepare girls to safeguard the health and happiness of the family. Problems of adequate food, clothing, housing, safety, recreation, rest, and social adjustment are considered. The all-important family budget and household economics are studied.

Courses offered by the Home Economics department are sewing, cooking, child care, home nursing, home decoration, and family relations.

Each year NWC homemakers participate in national and local contests; this year top honors were won in the Lenox China contest. In addition to preparing girls for the role of homemaker, professional careers are not overlooked as information is presented concerning positions in the home economics field.

Developing good sportsmanship and a healthy body are goals of the physical education department at NWC. The department strives to develop in each student an awareness of the importance of good health and the pleasures of competitive sports.

With OU's Bud Wilkinson heading the national physical fitness program, local educators have stressed a wider approach in physical education. Development of athletic stars is secondary to the offering of varied activities for all students.

Personal health, nutrition, and hygiene are among classes taught. Intramurals and competitive sports stress sportsmanship and teamwork.

Teachers give instruction in the fundamentals of the various popular sports which are so much a part of the American way of life.

Physical education and modern dance instructor, Miss Nancy Pierson, won the Orchesis Dance award three consecutive years at CSC before graduating in May, 1963. She served as choreographer as well as director of the dance pageant held here this spring.

"No wonder our physical fitness program is lagging," says Coach Merideth as he urges his physical education class to greater activity.

Group track meets play an important part during spring for the boys' physical education classes.

Vocational education classes receive a comprehensive course selection as well as special vocational training. Proper employee attitudes, techniques of selling and store organization are given through classroom study and supervised work experience.

Training in technical and skill positions in trade and industry is given vocational education students. Arts and crafts are also included in classwork.

Northwest Classen students have many opportunities to experiment with "tools of the trade" in the school's well equipped Industrial Arts department.

These courses demand imagination, whether it be creating, building, or repairing.

Classes in woodwork, printing, photography, auto mechanics, mechanical drawing, and architectural drawing involve learning mechanical skills in addition to carefully planned lessons in theory.

Many students in the mechanical drawing and architectural drawing departments won awards this year at various contests throughout the state.

Woodworking students designed and built many useful projects for their homes. They also designed window boxes for several teachers.

This spring boys in woodwork classes constructed bird houses and feeders which they placed in the patio for a bird sanctuary. The project was reported in a magazine article by Principal J. Frank Malone in March.

"Did Mr. Hale say to adjust the points?" Karl Johnson wonders as he checks under a car's hood in auto mechanics class.

"This picture came out better than I thought it would," photography student Tom Hobson tells classmate David Kuykendall as they print pictures in the school's dark room.

Drivers education students Stephanie Stephens and John Fagala study the traffic accident map in the city's traffic control office.

Drivers Education covers driving laws, cause and prevention of accidents, and proper attitude towards other drivers. This year an additional car was added full-time, making NWC a two-car school.

Students drive three hours behind the wheel, take thirty hours of classroom work, and twelve hours in the Drivo-trainers.

Police records show that teenage drivers who have taken a one-semester course, such as the one offered here, have fewer accidents and pay fewer fines for traffic infractions than the youthful driver without such training.

Driver training student Mary DeWolfe pictures herself behind the wheel of a flashy convertible as she takes initial training in one of the school's nine drivo-trainers.

Materials Center Established

This year, for the first time, an instructional materials center was established in the library. It was determined that a pool of secretaries, operating from a central location, could serve the needs of the instructional program more efficiently. Secretaries were channeled to various departments when needed.

Members of the cafeteria staff prepare nourishing food for the student body. ROW 1: Gladys Ferguson, Mary Beleele, Lena Mullins. ROW 2: Freda Ethridge, Jessye Darst, Margie Mayfield, Gloria Boyantan, Ann Mindin, Lois Boswell, Mary Gragg, Zealin Lowe, La Verne Wilkerson.

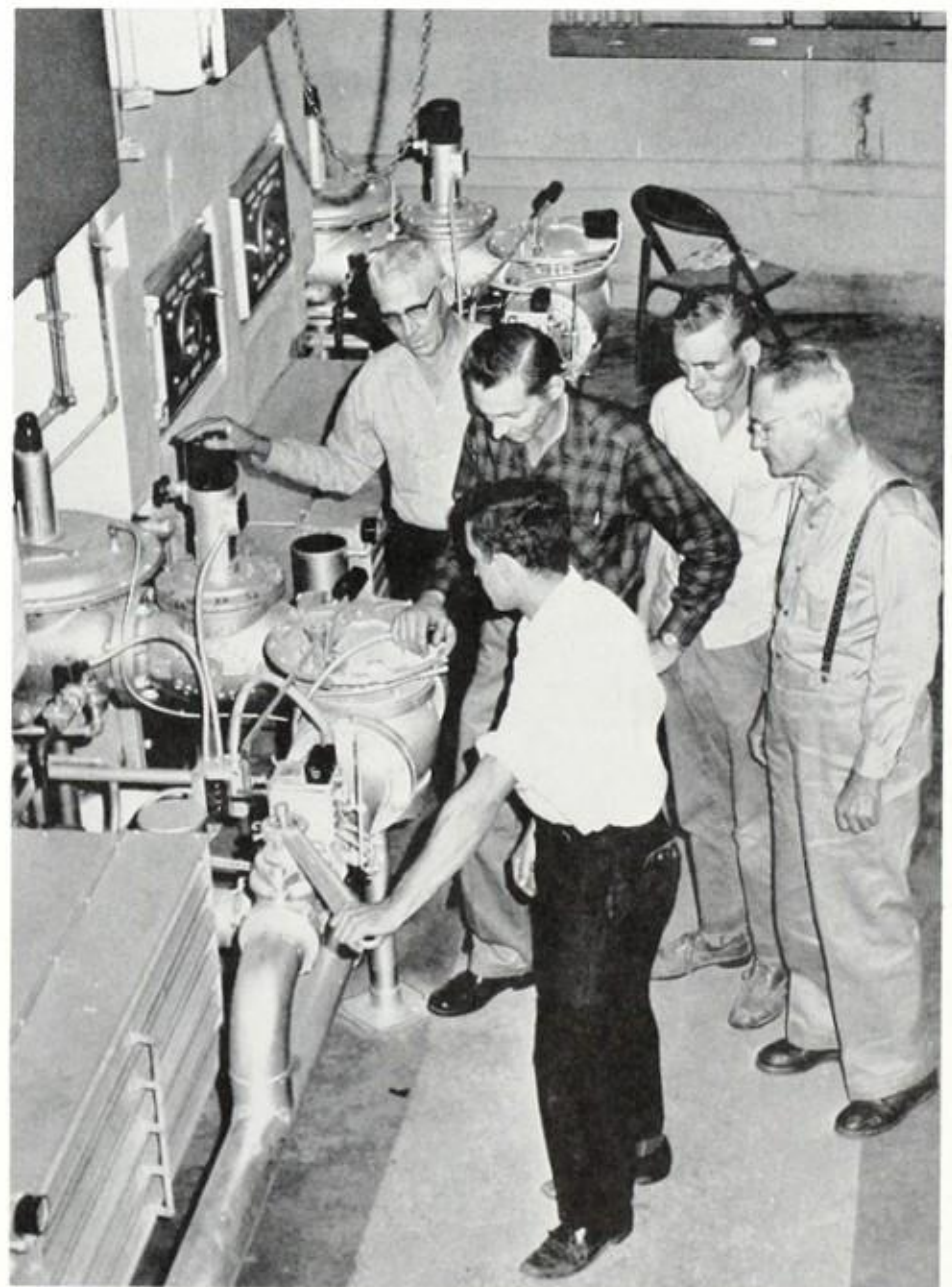

Since NWC has been a showplace for visitors since its opening almost ten years ago, special emphasis has been placed on keeping the building and campus in tip-top shape, ready for official inspection at all times. The Knights' hospitality has been commended by numerous guests.

Pride in maintaining a beautiful building and grounds soon became a tradition as Knights have continually enhanced the school by adding attractive accessories. Each graduating class has contributed to this progress.

Now that the new addition has been opened the problem of heating and maintenance has been increased. Crews must work around the clock to keep Knightland clean and warm.

Increased enrollment has put added burdens on the cafeteria staff as seven lunch periods, in staggered order, keep the cafeteria lines long.

Since NWC is the largest school plant in this area, organizational meetings and dinners are held here frequently by school groups. Although this necessitates extra work hours for the custodial and cafeteria staffs, they cooperate whole-heartedly in providing excellent service for guests.

Part of the custodial staff that provides building maintenance are: ROW 1: Sam Teague, head custodian; Calvin Smith, Douglas Roden. ROW 2: Basil Weldon, Johnnie Sampler.

Northwest Classsen

Lives in Its Students

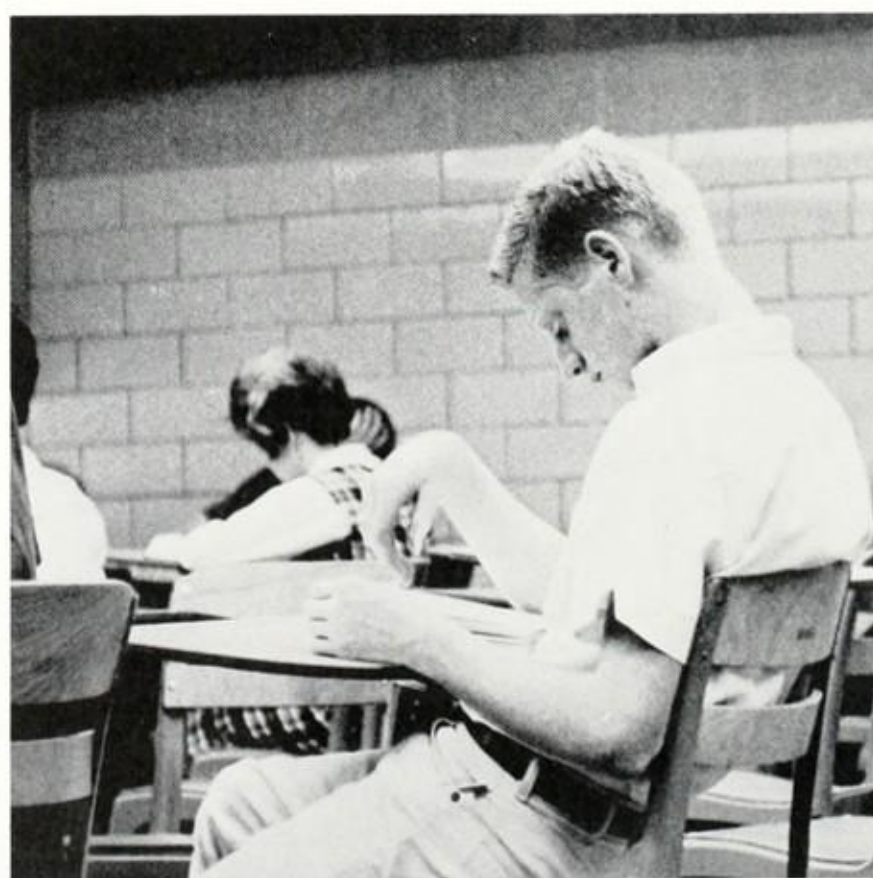

Learning . . . Laughter . . . Loyalty

Most Northwest Classen students recognize the disadvantages of attending a large high school. The classes are crowded; competition is stiff. Just when you think you know everyone, you walk to class a different way and are confronted by a crowd of total strangers. There is never quite enough room for everyone in assemblies, and you're forced to scout for parking places. Some days the long lines in the cafeteria are downright discouraging.

Yet for the three thousand students who make their way here daily from several miles in all directions, Northwest Classen is a way of life. In the crowded halls and quiet classrooms is found a tremendous diversity of backgrounds, personalities, ideas. Students gravitate toward others who share their interests, and in the large student body there is opportunity for exploration. You can meet new people—even in your senior year—and wonder how you ever could have missed them.

Because of its size, Northwest can offer many advantages: excellent facilities, such as modern equipment, language labs; a high-caliber faculty and counseling staff; and a widely varied curriculum, which includes both vocational and college preparatory training.

And, paradoxically, there is a greater feeling of unity, loyalty, purpose. Students feel they are part of something significant, more than "just a school."

Stark steel frames and thick tar smoke drew interested onlookers during the months of construction on the new addition.

Forming a relay line for papers in the first paper drive of the year are Phil Cooksey, Rig Greer and Joe Millar.

One word aptly describes the manner in which Northwest Classen students carry out any undertaking: intense. We are never content merely to do something, nor even to do it well; it must be record-breaking, superlative, the best.

Knights have come to expect success because years of consistent achievement have made it almost traditional. The first four classes set the standards for us to follow, and they set them high. Few can remember when our cheerleaders were not state champions. The band and the vocal music department consistently bring home top honors from contests, as do our debaters and speakers. NWC has won the All-Sports Trophy for four consecutive years, and has established a reputation of excellence in athletics. But even when we lose, we display superlative sportsmanship.

In the scholastic area we take our work still more seriously. The idea that intellectual awareness is socially unacceptable is as passe as pony tails and the bop. We strive to learn, and good grades are difficult to come by. Because of rigorous academic competition, a student with a very respectable 3.5 average may not even be in the upper ten per cent of his class.

This record of accomplishment, however, is only the by-product of a deep, driving motivation, almost urgency, which compels us to move forward. Why this intensity, this singleness of purpose? Is it only the ambitious idealism of youth? Perhaps. But we consider it rather a mark of the times: the characteristic of a generation forced to set its own goals and standards, a blending of idealistic visionaries and cold, hard materialists, unafraid of self assertion, bent on achievement.

Success Traditional,

Goals Become Realities

"Safety first!" reminds officer Williamson as Larry Palmer attaches a safety check sticker to his car.

Grim faces of Judy Caldwell and Ronnie Jones reflected the feeling of Knights and Ladies when they viewed the vandalism on the Knight's-head on the patio.

"Let's see—the crown, the roses, the necklace, and—oh, yes!" Emily Brogden, All Sports Queen, is crowned by O-Club President, Dennis Klingsick, as Wayne Snipes, her campaign manager, beams with pride.

Dr. George E. Mathis, official of the NASC (National Association of Student Councils), explains to Dan Pope, Linda Mines, and Jack Scudder, the procedure for the Inter-City Student Council workshop held at Northwest.

Continuously We Explored, Discovered Things We Liked

With the coming of the New Frontier, a new degree of seriousness affected every aspect of our lives: we began to read and analyze current events, to search out the truth, to exercise good judgment more often, and, when put to the test with honor assemblies, we replied unanimously, "We can!"

On election days we often found ourselves better informed than our parents; apathy was no longer fashionable. We took pride in our ideals.

Individualism in many forms—intellectual, moral, social—became evident among students. More and more, we formed our own opinions, disregarding the dictates of others. Although there were the usual "hangouts," and clothes were subject as ever to fads, a perfunctory assurance that "everybody" approved of something no longer "cut ice" with us.

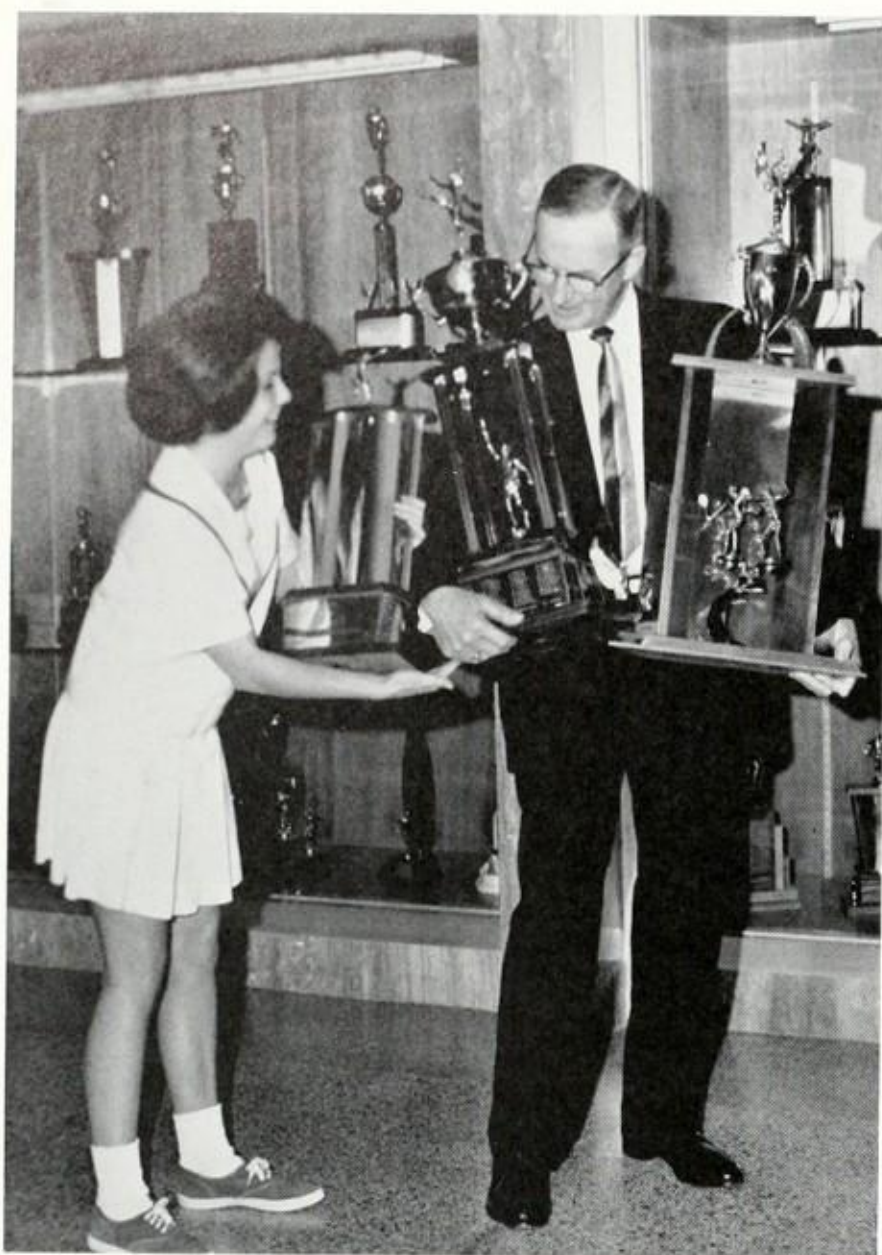

Breaking away from group decree, we began to explore the areas of our own tastes and interests. We discovered the things we liked. For example, many turned from rock-and-roll to folk music or jazz, or existed three or four days without appearing at the Delta. We experienced greater personal freedom, and with it sought the elusive identity of teenage years.

The November air filled with smoke as Knights displayed their spirit before the John Marshall football game.

"I know, I know about the murder . . ." Mrs. Warren (Judy Caldwell) confesses as she reluctantly hands the gun to the deaf mute (Kathy Grubbs). Ridge Hooks (center) played the part of Professor Warren in the December 3 all-school play, "The Spiral Staircase."

"Woops, Mr. Malone, I'll catch it!" Cheerleader Kay Lewis lends a helping hand as the principal tries to handle the three trophies presented to him in assembly: Tulsa Hale basketball tournament, first place state cheerleaders, and majorettes first place, State Fair.

Degree of Excellence Acquired by Teamwork

Few students realize the many details of planning which interlock to produce results. For the simplest activity, arrangements must be made to take care of each important trifle.

Who sets up the risers for the chorus? Who orders the cokes? How does it happen that Knights accomplish so much with a minimum of confusion? Teamwork. We work together to achieve.

It begins with Student Council, where the blueprints of extra-curricular life are drawn up. In weekly committee meetings, basic ideas are shaped and polished before being presented to the Council. They paint signs, hire bands, schedule assemblies.

Students scout neighborhoods for old papers, or fetch wood for bonfires.

The speech department pulls curtains, memorizes scripts, flips switches.

Audio-visual aides test mikes, connect amplifiers, run projectors.

Courtesy Club ushers, directs. Pep clubs applaud, sell programs, present capers. Announcers Club informs over central sound. The band plays; the Cry-Slurs sing. Art students make posters, decorate halls.

In the end, components assemble miraculously, always attaining the typical high standards of NWC. Hard work is done so casually it seems effortless.

Knights crusade for their ideals, often even chase windmills in their youthful excess of zeal. But behind the waving banners, everyone is working conscientiously, fulfilling his duty to complete the careful chart of success.

Jim Troxel plays Mitch Miller as the student store singers dominate Central Sound waves. NWC's version of the old carol "Twelve Days of Christmas" was part of their sales promotion during Christmas rush at the student store.

The Indians lose again as the Cygnet Victory Train rumbles through Capitol Hill territory. Cygnet capers highlight pep assembly January 21.

Capers, Inkslingers' Ball Delight Knights

Pat Sigmon, Alice Hiniker, Mike Eischen, and Jan Epperson shared a table at the Inkslingers' Ball Jan. 17 at Capitol Hill. Alice and Mike were NWC's candidates for Prince and Princess of Print.

Still finding it hard to believe that they have just been crowned Knight and Lady of Friendship, Ann Gibbs and Jim Cobb watch their court pass by during the traditional Valentine's Day Assembly.

Philosophy of 'Newness' Expressed by Students

The future is a very real thing to Northwest Classen students. Our world is three-dimensional: the past provides experience; the present gives opportunity to accomplish; the future represents our goals.

We are tomorrow-minded, partly because of the atmosphere in which we live. Oklahoma City is a young town where things are clean-lined and new, and her people are not satisfied to stand still. The influence of new industries and the desire to grow has made citizens aware of their world and has given us a reputation for progressive achievement.

Northwest lies in the center of this battleground of new ideas. The school building itself is big and sunny and still expanding, but the important evidence of this philosophy of "newness" is seen in student life.

Many school elections are executed by voting machine, preparing students for actual voting as adults. Every student is identified by an IBM card, and grades are recorded by machine.

The school has established firm contacts with the community, fulfilling civic responsibilities. Annually we support Red Cross, United Fund, Toys for Tots, and Salvation Army through soliciting and contributions. The student body donated $1000 toward the proposed municipal theater.

Because of our advanced outlook, Northwest students readily assume the tasks entrusted to them by tomorrow's world.

Beaming happily, Queen Jeanne Scott and John Lemmon reign over festivities at the Distributive Education banquet February 21 following coronation ceremonies.

Classes Elect 'Toppers'

Top Teen election, sponsored by the Shield, was initiated during the first year of the school's history in an effort to recognize the outstanding boy and girl in each class.

No publicity is given the election prior to the voting in an effort to minimize campaigning; no run off election is held. Voting takes place during one advisory period.

Students cast their votes only for the top teens in their own class. Following the secret balloting, Shield staff members count votes. Announcement of winners is made in a Shield scoop each February.

Planning for the freshman picnic can be hard work as Chris Southard, president, and Gloria Lundien, vice president, are finding out. This one-two combination was also selected Freshman Top Teens by classmates.

'The Torch Is Passed'

Friday, November 22, 1963, 1.30 p.m. Low flags against a gray sky were wordless symbols of deep, silent grief.

Mr. Malone's gesture symbolized the feelings of people throughout the world. Printed indelibly on our minds are those four sober, saddening days when all eyes and hearts turned to Dallas; Washington; Arlington; Johnson City, Texas.

"When our generation has passed away, and when the tongues of praise and comment now speaking have turned to a tomb of cold dust, it will be written that John F. Kennedy walked with the American people in their vast diversity and gave them all he had toward their moving on to new phases of their great human adventure."

—Carl Sandburg

"All this will not be finished in the first one hundred days. Nor will it be finished in the first one thousand days, nor in the life of this administration, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet. But let us begin."

—John F. Kennedy

Awards presented April 28 in the first of the two annual awards assemblies were contributed by civic groups, individuals and foundations in recognition of achievement in specific fields. Scholastic excellence is stimulated by these presentations, closely guarded secrets until announced in one of the traditional award assemblies held each spring.

D. Classen, Oklahoma City '89ers and early civic leaders. When these awards were established, Mr. Classen stipulated that the awards would be given for "outstanding promise of worthy contribution to the progress of the world by reason of strength of character, record of scholarship, activities of leadership, and all-around achievement."

Student Council Proposes Motto

Choosing the Christmas "specials" for the Student Store are the appointed officers of the Student Council: Jean Taylor, hist.; Charles Deutsch, parl.; Lynn Ketcham, corres. sec.; Janice Cherry, asst. student store mgr., and Jim Troxel, student store mgr.

"Grind Grant!" cries Miss Owen, along with Jack Scudder. The vivacious Student Council sponsor symbolizes school spirit at its best!

Based on the principles of a democratic form of government, NWC's student government consists of three branches: Legislative, Executive, Judicial.

The Legislative branch is composed of a representative from each advisory. Its duty is to make the laws and formulate the policies of our school.

The Executive department consists of the officers whose duty it is to lead the Legislative branch of government.

The Judicial branch of government is composed of five justices who serve as judges in all matters concerning the student body, student council, organizations, and administration. They have the power to impeach, arbitrate and interpret the laws of our school government.

The year was launched with the student body endorsing overwhelmingly the Student Council recommendation of the new official school motto: "You-Knighted by Pride and Loyalty."

Traditional was the controversy over the point and honor systems, which resulted in considerable revision. Honor study halls once again became a reality.

Topping the list of this year's achievements was the winning of the state presidency for next year at the SC convention in Guthrie. For the second consecutive year NWC held the post of the Inter-city council presidency.

Junior Barry Babcock, and Senior Melanie Nelson display one of the posters Student Council members took to Guthrie for their successful campaign for state presidency.

Discussing the controversial point system are the members of the Judicial Board: Jack Scudder, Jim Warren, Roby Davidson, Mark Creekmore, Chief Justice; Craig Busey, and Virginia Lee, secretary.

PTSA EXECUTIVE BOARD: Mrs. Allen Williams, sec.; Mrs. C. K. Woodard, pres.; Mrs. D. J. Demopolos, treas.; Mrs. Richard Cox, 1st v. pres.

PTSA Theme Is 'United by Understanding'

For the second consecutive year, NWC's PTSA unit boasted the state's largest membership (3,517). "United by Understanding" was the theme of this year's programs.

The year's activities were launched with the annual "teacher appreciation luncheon" at O'Mealey's cafeteria August 28. Next, parents assisted with freshman orientation program. Climaxing the membership drive was a Hootenanny presented to the class boasting the highest percentage of memberships. Other highlights of the year included Career Day, College Night and the formation of special study groups.

Sewing draperies for NWC's Cafeteria are PTSA mothers Mrs. Boyd D. Lyles, Mrs. V. E. Burnet, Mrs. Jack Hoberecht, and Mrs. C. K. Woodard.

It looks as though Mr. Harold Griffin has lost his way at the PTSA Open House, but senior Linda Jones comes to the rescue.

Top Scholars, Leaders Tapped by N.H.S.

To have one's name placed on the National Honor Society plaque is one of the highest honors one can obtain at NWC. Besides scholarship, a member must stand high in leadership, service, and loyalty.

First of the year's two initiation ceremonies was held November 7 when thirty-three seniors were initiated in traditional ceremonies in which members take leading parts exemplifying leadership, character, service. Emblem interpreter, torch bearer, and flag bearers are also speaking participants.

The second semester initiation, which took place in March, included the induction of the third five per cent of the senior class and the first five per cent of the junior class. The spring initiation group, along with those who were initiated last spring and fall, comprise the top fifteen per cent of the senior class.

Delegates attended district and state conventions. Mrs. Maxine Tyler served as head sponsor.

Speaking participants in the National Honor Society initiation November 7 are Barbara Walk, Jim Warren, Melinda Hanraty, Mike Rogers, Lynn Ketcham, Jack Givens (master of ceremonies), Marsha Ray, Roby Davidson, Pam Ledden, Robert Roark, Judy Sneed.

Honor Groups Tap Record Number

To be eligible for membership in Honor Language, initiates must be enrolled in their fifth semester of language and have maintained a B plus grade average. Upon becoming an initiate, green, yellow, and white ribbons are acquired. Initiates must pledge to continue their study of the language for a fourth year before they can be initiated.

Honor Math requires that a member must be currently enrolled in a math course, have at least three semesters of A's and one semester of B in mathematics and continue until graduation. Initiates wear pledge ribbons, of two shades of blue, light and dark, which are the club's colors.

The emblem of Honor Language is an owl sitting on a Roman lamp. The owl symbolizes wisdom; the lamp reminds members that wisdom is attained through hard work, and by "burning the midnight oil." Initiation for 68 new members was held March 18 in the Little Theater.

Artists Join Art Center

One of the highlights of the year for Art Honor Society members was the presentation of membership cards to the group by the Oklahoma Art Center.

Club meetings featured demonstrations by recognized artists, tours of local art exhibits and creative projects.

Club members cooperated with Red Cross and other school groups in making decorations and providing donations for charity.

"Ah, a Rembrandt!" Officers react diversely to a famous painting as club members tour the Oklahoma City art center at the Fair Grounds. They are Jan Harriss, sec.-treas., Donna Hollingsworth, pres., Larry Bierman, chap., and Jimmie Kennard, v. pres.

Judging student art work to determine new members for National Art Honor Society are TV art instructors Gladys Whelihan, Ruth Abbott and art consultant Donna Schumacher.

Top Courtesy Club Officers for first semester are decorating gifts for convalescent homes during the holiday season. They are Virginia Lee, v. pres., Becky Brawley, pres., Lynn Ketcham, treas., and Alice Hiniker, sec.

Serving as Official Knightland Hostesses

Fulfilling its purpose of service to the school, Courtesy Club members served as ushers and hostesses for freshman orientation, PTSA, Open House, and OEA meetings. Refreshments at all faculty meetings are provided and served by Courtesy Club girls.

This year Courtesy Club increased its efforts to work closely with Key Club and other organizations in performing community projects. Club members cooperated with Key Club boys in the United Fund drive and City Clean-Up Campaign.

October 19, the two clubs jointly sponsored a dance at the First Christian Church. It was decided that this should become a traditional social event.

At Christmas time, Courtesy Club girls collected over eighty formal dresses which were presented to the PTSA Student Aid Committee for distribution to needy girls.

Mrs. Janie Creekmore, head sponsor, Mrs. Mollie Mae Davidson, Mrs. Donna Whitley, and Mr. Dick Mitchell supervise club activities.

Services Performed

Each of NWC's 94 advisories is represented in the two monthly meetings of the High School Red Cross. With proceeds from the two donut sales held during the school year, enrollment cards for all students are secured.

This year two hundred twenty-one pairs of socks were obtained from the sock tree for distribution to needy children. Located in the library, this sock tree has become a tradition at Northwest Classen. Kaethe Reiff was in charge of this project.

Red Cross members furnished and decorated Christmas trees at the Veterans Administration and Children's Memorial Hospitals. A group of carolers visited shut ins and hospitals. Senior Beverly Reynolds heads a committee which provides service to homebound students. Red Cross volunteers visit the homebound to help them keep in touch with the school. Shields are regularly taken to these students.

A gift chest, filled with school and health supplies, is sent overseas each year at Christmas time. Marcy Eagin serves as this year's gift chest chairman.

Several representatives from NWC's Red Cross chapter have donated time to the Motor Service Corps, where they drive Red Cross vehicles.

Another High School Red Cross Service Project: The annual sock tree in the Library. Judy Caldwell and Penny Powell gather socks to take to needy children.

"Five hundred erasers, six pencils, volleyball, and two rulers." Prexy Michaelyn Barker, sponsor Helen Bourke, and Marcy Eagin, chest committee chairman, check the contents of the overseas gift chest.

In Second Year, Tri-Hi-Y Notes Growth

Under the direction of the YMCA, Tri-Hi-Y has joined with Hi-Y at numerous times to carry out its program of promoting world fellowship and fostering Christian attitudes in the community. Weekly meetings are sometimes held with the Hi-Y group.

Although Tri-Hi-Y was organized just last year, it has taken its place as an active part of school life.

In February, girls attended a pre-legislature session at OSU in preparation for the state Youth in Government conference in March.

Miss Karen Baumann, Mrs. Esther Norton, and Miss Sandra Glomset are club sponsors.

Though two separate clubs, Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y cooperated in promoting local and state projects. November 23-24, seven boys and six girls attended the state conference at Western Hills Lodge. Boys sold tickets to the Mummers' theater; they helped sell Christmas trees for the Northwest Optimist club in December.

In February, NWC's Hi-Y chapter, along with other city school groups, sponsored a Hootenanny, under the direction of the City Hi-Y Council. For the second year, club members formed a basketball team and competed in the city Hi-Y basketball tournament.

Five bills were submitted by NWC's delegates to the state Youth in Government legislature held in Oklahoma City in March.

D.E. Prepares Future Leaders in Marketing

Onlookers were startled by the spectacle of DE club members, Rick Meyers and Gerald Murphy, rushing through the halls carrying dummies. Members used the forms in preparing a merchandising display for the DE show case.

NWC's chapter of the Distributive Education club, sponsored by Miss Karen Baumann, helps to develop future leaders in the field of marketing and distribution. Members are given instructions in selling, interviewing, and advertising. Students learn how to approach customers, write display cards and arrange window displays.

Between classroom work and on-the-job training, D.E. students are able to prepare for the responsibilities of employment.

Members of the D.E. club presented a spring talent show in addition to sponsoring their annual pancake supper.

Club business was transacted at 7:00 a.m. breakfast meetings every Friday. Officers attended district officers training school at Enid. The February employer-employee banquet was highlighted by the crowning of the D.E. queen.

A display window in the shop building was maintained throughout the year by club members. A variety of merchandising displays was exhibited; window dressings were changed weekly.

The State Conference was held in Oklahoma City March 1-3 at the Sheraton Hotel. Club members competed in individual contests, such as public speaking, layouts, copy writing, show card writing, and store layout.

Excellence in Speech, Drama Recognized

The National Forensic League is an honorary organization which requires members to earn at least twenty-five points by speaking at competitive speech tournaments and for local groups. They must also be in the upper two-thirds of their speech class and accepted by a majority of the Forensic members.

National Thespians, honorary dramatics organization, is created to promote a better understanding of the theatrical world. To qualify for membership, one must participate in some capacity in the theater, receiving ten points for working with the stage crew, serving as a ticket seller, or performing an acting role. Points may be accumulated throughout the year until the goal is reached.

Special Services Provided by Clubs

"Youth of the Kingdom" was organized to promote religious activities in school. Club members present devotionals each morning over Central Sound System and for athletic events. Visits were made to shut-ins at Christmas time. Every Wednesday morning at 8:10, guest speakers representing different faiths speak to the group in a worship service in the Little Theater.

Announcers Club provides several students each morning to present daily announcements over the Central Sound System. Members must audition before a club committee at the beginning of each semester to become a member. Applicants are judged on the basis of personality, diction, emphasis, and voice control.

German Culture Absorbed by Members

Membership in the German Club is open to all students enrolled in a German class or those who speak the language. To promote understanding of the culture of the German peoples is the purpose of the German Club. It gives members an opportunity to use the German language during discussion groups where only German is spoken.

Club members made gifts at Christmas time that were typical German gifts. Two station wagon loads of toys were taken to Memorial Hospital by club members to be distributed among the children.

For the club's Christmas party senior Paula Straley made a gingerbread house, entirely edible, which was a replica of the one famous throughout Germany. Even the snow was white frosting and coconut.

"Get away from Das Knusperhauschen," cries Paula Straley to John Runka and Mike Traska. Paula found the recipe for the gingerbread house, a typical German treat, in a German magazine; she had to translate it to English.

Open only to seniors who have been recommended by their junior English teachers, the Great Books club was formed to stimulate active interest in the world's great literature.

Chief entertainment for club parties was playing charades, in which members pantomimed parts of books discussed in class.

Junior Classical League members must be currently enrolled in a Latin class or have completed two years of the language. Purpose of the Chapter is to encourage interest in appreciation of the civilization, language, literature, and art of Ancient Greece and Rome.

Eight Junior Classical League members, accompanied by sponsors Ruth Warram and Janie Creekmore, attended the National JCL convention in Lawrence, Kansas, August 23.

The annual Roman banquet February 20 featured the usual procedure of first year Latin classes filling the role of slaves. Second year students provided entertainment, while third and fourth year students acted as Caesarian nobles.

Boasting the distinction of being the only club in school to have a room used by no other group, the Radio Club broadcasts from its own station, with call letters W5DFH. The club was organized expressly for students interested in communications and the mechanics of the radio. Club members also congregate in homes of club members who own their own sets.

Composed of boys who are interested in laboratory experience and the theory of electronics, the Electronics Club presents its members with challenges in problems which would be met in industry and research. Club members visited F.A.A. electronic installations, and attended lectures of outstanding speakers in the field of electronics.

Established to familiarize students with the various opportunities in aeronautics was the Aeronautics Club. Visits to aircraft production plants, control towers, and F.A.A. training centers constitute the program of the members.

Membership in the Science Club is open to anyone interested in the various scientific fields. Special groups are formed to accommodate interests of members. These groups include chemistry, physics, botany, zoology, and photography. Field trips and guest speaker are part of club activities. Club members often work together in preparation for the science fairs.

Open to all library aides is membership in the Library Club. Club meetings feature book reviews and trips to other libraries. Affiliated with district and state library groups, members attended semi-annual meetings of the Oklahoma City Student Librarians' Association and the annual convention of the state group.

In its second year, Junior Delegates to the World enlarged its membership and extended its activities. Long range plans for foreign travel were carefully outlined by committees.

At the invitation of club members, eight Mexican students visited NWC for two weeks second semester. They were guests in homes of Junior Delegates.

Round Table staff members find that working on this ever-growing publication is a challenge to the student who has a strong desire to give something of himself to his school. A feeling of satisfaction and pleasure is derived from the realization that one has made a lasting contribution to NWC.

This year publication packet sales reached an all-time high at NWC as 2555 students paid six dollars for the Round Table and Shield.

As student journalists, publication staff members feel they have been a significant part in making history at NWC as well as recording it.

of Local Music Groups

What is Cryslur? It is a student who, because he aspires to be a part of the elite music group at Northwest Classen, is willing to make the sacrifices involved.

He reports to Mr. Platt promptly at 7:30 a.m. each morning for class, attends special rehearsals before every performance and often takes private lessons to maintain the excellence required.

For the fourth consecutive year, Cryslurs officially opened the Christmas season at Penn Square. They appeared at the Northwest Kiwanis club Christmas banquet.

Following a performance at the State Capitol building, Dr. Oliver Hodge, state superintendent of schools, declared that "Cryslurs compare with the best in our colleges and universities."

Cryslurs participated in the City Festival in February. Dee Ann Lee, sophomore, Diane Koonce, senior, and Stan Davis, junior, took top honors in competition with four hundred vocalists from seven states.

Last September, Cryslurs circled early summer dates on their calendars for their long-awaited singing tour of Colorado Springs. With a $2000 goal, musicians worked diligently to earn money for the trip.

Four Bands Featured; 'Appreciation' Accented

Although band and orchestra classes convene during the school day, most of the musical activities require preparation and participation outside of school. Instrumental section rehearsals, contest practice sessions, and 7:30 a.m. drills for the marching band were a necessary part of every musician's daily routine.

An intermediate band was added this year, making a total of four active NWC bands: symphonic, marching, freshman, and the newly formed intermediate band.

Resplendent in new purple and gold uniforms, the band was saluted by fans at a special half-time presentation at Northwest's first home football game. The pep band, under student conductor, Jim Morgan, provided music at basketball games.

School musicians, aided by the newly organized Hi-Notes Club, embarked on a program to elevate the music appreciation level of NWC students. Enthusiastic response to the fall concert emphasized growing interest in a wide variety of music.

A record number of twenty music students were qualified to play in the All-state band and orchestra. Highest ratings in district and state contests at OCU and OU were merited by school musicians.

Members of the department sold magazines and fruit cakes to help finance projects, and sponsored the annual sweetheart ball, held Feb. 22 at the First Christian Church youth center.

Mr. Art Johnson, known as Northwest's "Music Man," has been band and orchestra director since the school's opening nine years ago. In addition to his position here, Mr. Johnson serves as personnel manager, principal bass clarinetist, and percussionist for the Oklahoma City Symphony Orchestra.

Falcons Uphold Traditions

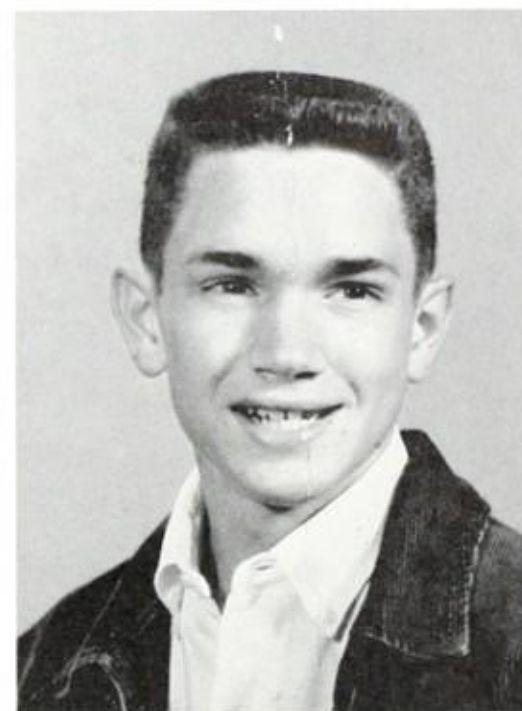

Falcons began the year with the traditional "duc season" which ended with an initiation party at Lakeview Tower Apartments.

Throughout the football season, Falcons consistently topped other clubs in the selling of athletic programs.

Jan Epperson, Carol Fonvielle, Ann Gibbs, Kathy Kendall, Pam Ledden, and Jean Taylor were nominated for queen candidates at a meeting in October.

December 20 marked the high point in the year's Falcon social activities with the crowning of the Falcon Pep Club queen. The queen was presented a coat with the club insignia on the coat, a necklace, and a crown. Each of the princesses received a necklace with their name on the back. The formal was held in the Emerald Room at the Huckins Hotel.

The Falcon pep club won the annual Falcon-Lancer football game for the second year in a row.

Cygnets Proud of Heritage

In Knighthood lore there is mention of young swans, or Cygnets, who graced castle moats adding beauty and serenity to the scene. This is the goal to which Northwest Classen Cygnet members aspire.

Members usher at concerts and the theater. Social service projects and civic drives receive Cygnet support.

This year, for the first time, club members sponsored a rummage sale to raise money for the annual football banquet. Held at the Skirvin Tower's Persian Room, the banquet featured entertainment by club members entitled "Kicks '63." The show was a take-off on football, with the accent on injuries. Sponsors, coaches, administrators, and their wives were special guests.

A twenty-five foot sign, made of purple and gold satin, was displayed at all athletic events in the Cygnet pep section. Club members also traveled together by bus to the Shawnee game.

Lancers Boost School Spirit

Originally Lancers were recognized defenders, always ready to aid a Knight. Since NWC opened, Lancers have contributed their support to all Knightland activities.

Lancers launched the school's year with "duc" season, which ended in the annual initiation party.

Chris Bricmont, Diane Koonce, Marcia Maddox, Phyllis Rahill and Marsha Ray were nominated as Lancer Queen candidates. The Queen was crowned at the Christmas formal December 14 at Oklahoma City Golf and Country Club. The queen was presented a coat, necklace and crown.

Throughout the football and basketball seasons, the boys sold programs, attended games and presented "capers" for a pep assembly.

Lancers again competed with the Falcons in football and basketball. A trophy is given to the winning team.

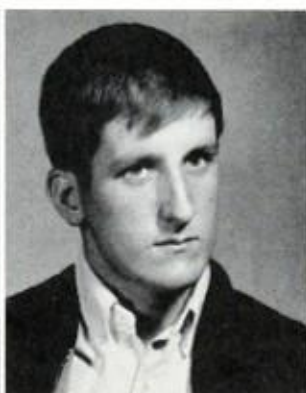

Lancers received recognition for selling more athletic programs than any other club.

Coronets Contribute Glow

"Coronet" was chosen for a pep club name in 1955 when the school opened because of its association with sovereignty in days of Knighthood. Coronets were small crowns worn to signify a mark of rank.

Coronet pep club has established a reputation for whole-hearted support of school and community activities. Charity drives, capers for pep assemblies, attending games, and ushering for community functions create a full-time after school and weekend schedule for members.

New members were entertained at their first meeting by a skit featuring club officers. Special refreshments were served at the first meeting and at Christmas time.

The bus trip to Shawnee in the fall and the banquet for basketball boys in the spring were the year's highlights. Basketball players are annually feted by Coronets at a banquet where coaches award team letters.

Court Jesters, Pep Council, Coordinate Clubs

Composed of the four pep club presidents, their sponsors, and one other representative from each club, the Pep Council coordinates the efforts of the pep clubs in establishing and maintaining school spirit and good sportsmanship.

After careful screening by the pep clubs and student body, the school's head cheerleader is finally selected by pep council members.

Court Jesters was organized by the cheerleaders to promote better cooperation between pep clubs and cheerleaders.

Through extended practice, girls gain a thorough understanding of the school yells.

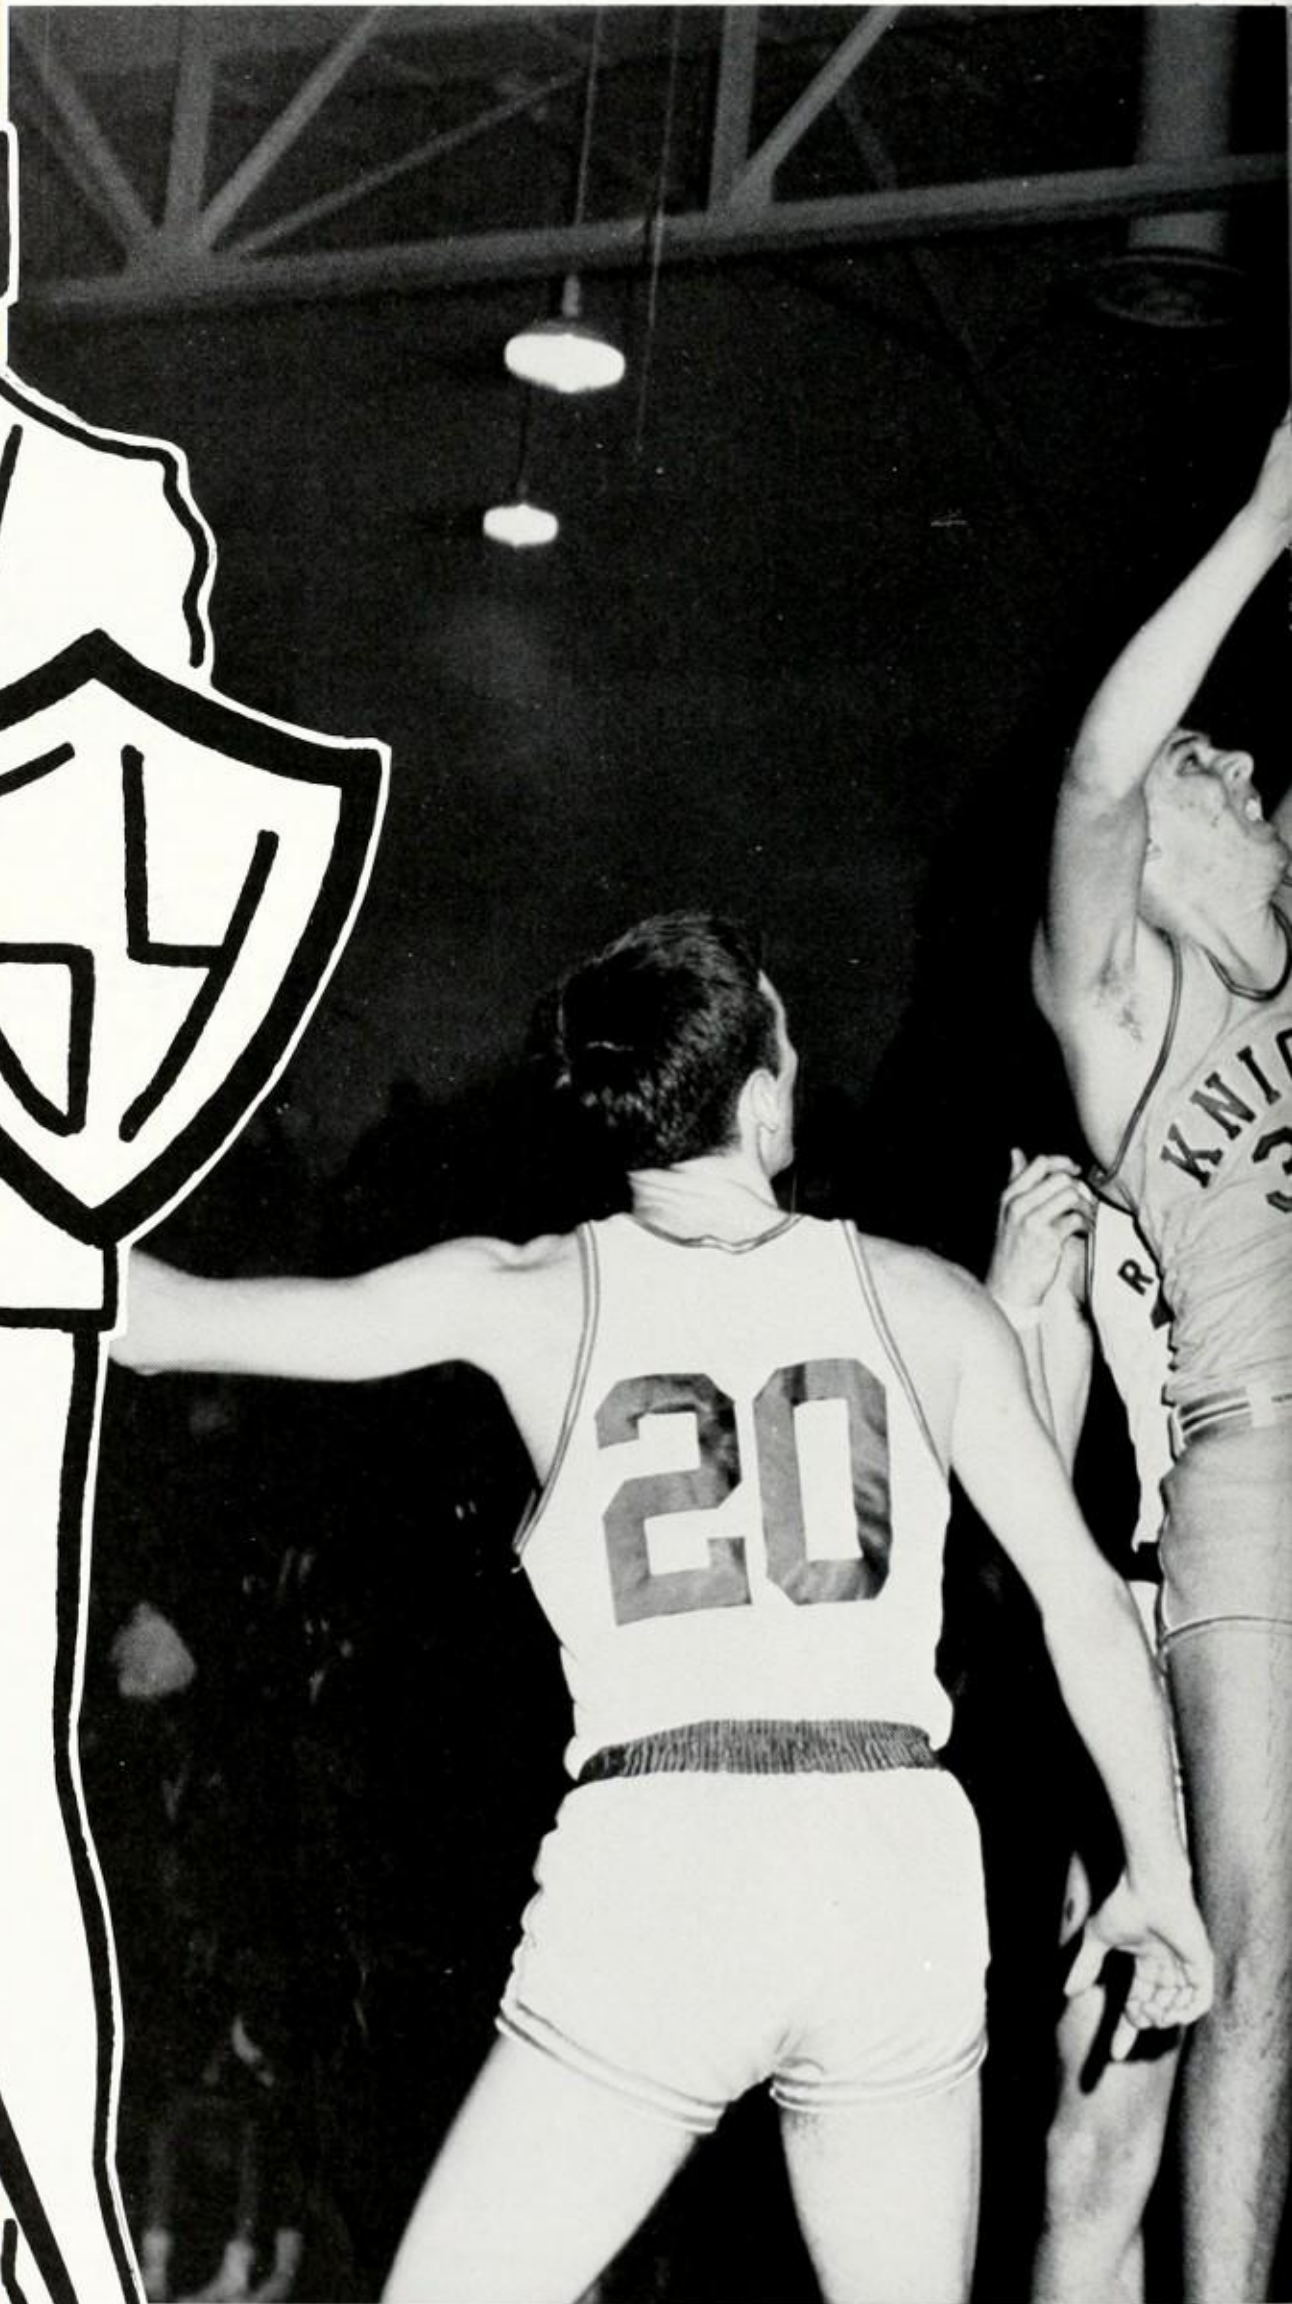

Members interested in becoming cheerleaders are schooled in techniques of crowd control. Three girls are chosen by Court Jesters every two months to lead cheers at B and C squad games.

Each year the group presents a Spirit Award to the student who did the most during the year to promote sportsmanship and uphold school spirit.

Twenty-five Injuries Prove Devastating

"Don't tell me who's injured, let me guess," says Coach Meredith to Coaches Davis and Haynes.

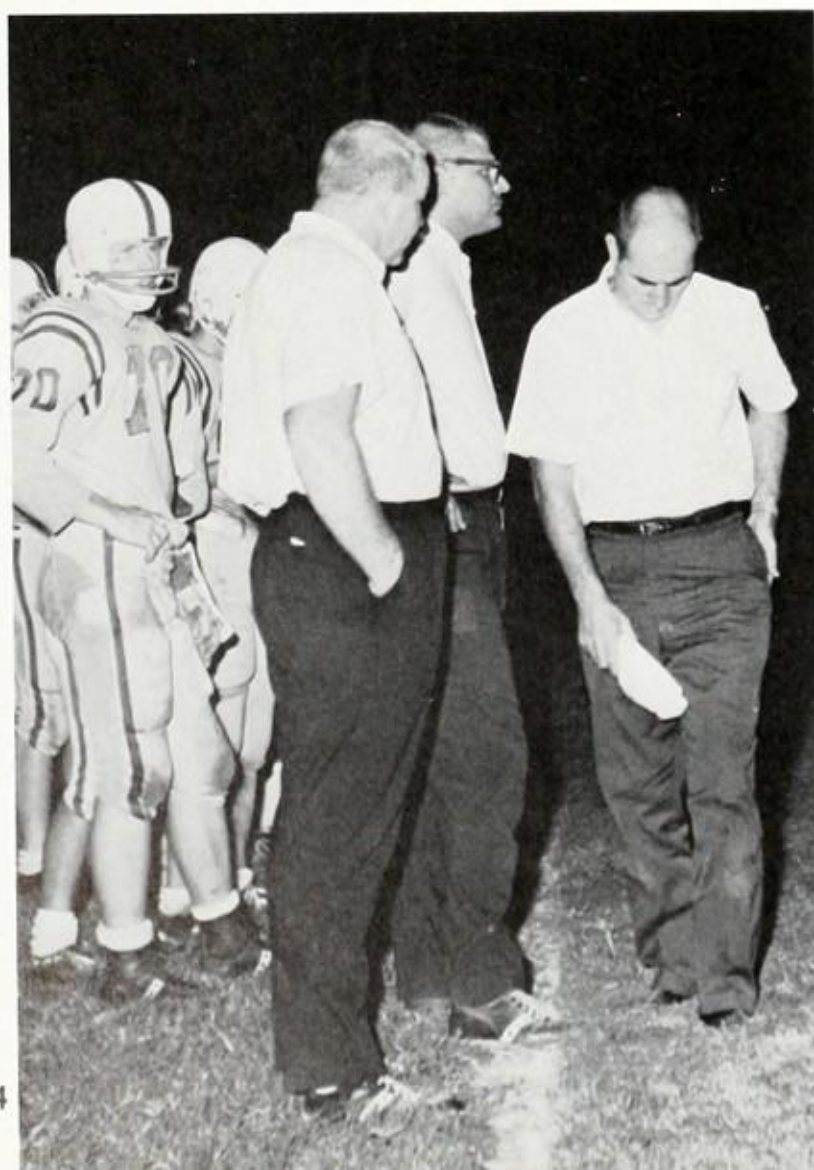

"Hard-luck Knights" seemed to be the nickname of this year's football squad. During the first six weeks of the season twenty-five varsity players received injuries, ranging from broken legs and arms, to slight brain concussions.

Disappointment was made keener by the fact that Mid-State coaches, in pre-season ratings, picked the Knights to finish second in Mid-State conference play.

NWC's injury-plagued squad quickly lost its ranking, and completed the season with a three win—seven loss record.

to Knight Grid Fortunes

NWC 13—DEL CITY 6

Winning the first game of the season, the Knights lengthened their winning streak to seven games, with last year's six straight victories. Gary Sharpley scored on a run up the middle and kicked the extra point to make it 7-0. Later, John White caught a deflected pass and the Knights came away with a 13-6 victory.

Before the game the Knights were ranked sixth in the state in the poll taken by the city paper. But with the coming of next week's game, the Knights, having a total of 25 injuries this year, lost their ranking.

NWC 0—MIDWEST 31

In this game, the Knights' woes started. Within five minutes of playing time, Gary Sharpley, John White and Rick Simon were injured. After losing these men, the Knights could never stop the Bombers and were completely overpowered 31-0. The first eight minutes of the game looked like the outcome could be different as the Knights showed they came to play. But with three starting backs and the remaining two line-backers John White and Rick Simon injured, the Knights seemed to lose all poise and were soundly beaten.

"Watch out, Busey, you're the last back." Quarterback Craig Busey skirts right end against the Bombers.

Two Quarterbacks Lost,

NWC 0—HARDING 8

Both teams engaged in a hard-fought defensive battle. With two minutes gone in the first quarter, Harding's quarterback went around left end for 56 yards and the touchdown. He then connected for the extra point and the score was 8-0. The Knights had five drives stopped inside the 25-yard line.

The Knights had to punt 12 times because of their inability to move the ball. In the last three years Harding has won over the Knights; the series between the schools is now even at 4-4.

"Here I come, ready or not." Rick Simon turns around the left end against John Marshall.

Knights Don't Give Up

NWC 8—CAPITOL HILL 34

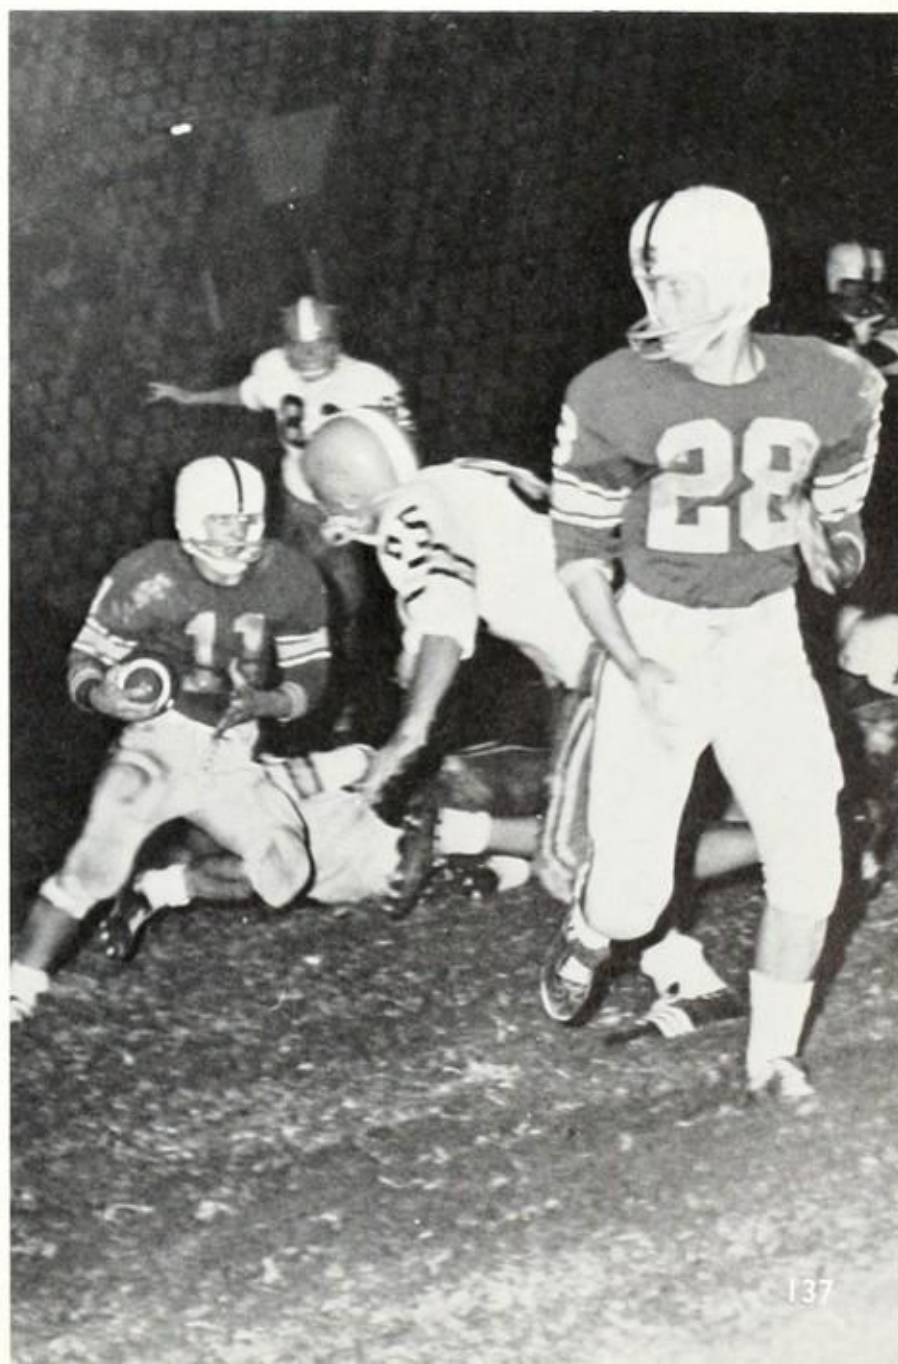

Hampered by the powerful passing attack of the opposition, the Knights were defeated by the Capitol Hill Redskins, 34-8.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Redskins threw a 22-yard pass to start the ball rolling for their 34 total points. The Redskins picked up ten points in the third quarter and eight points in the fourth, but not before the Knights uncorked a 62 yard march in eight plays sparked by quarterback Craig Busey and halfback Rick Simon. Busey made a touchdown on a four-yard run with Simon going over for the two point conversion.

NWC 0—PUTNAM CITY 14

Hobbled by the loss of two starting quarterbacks, Craig Busey and Jack Thomas, Northwest fell to the Putnam City Pirates 14-0. Halfbacks Rick Simon and Gil Skeen were pressed into service at quarterback, leaving Northwest with only one backfield man at his regular position. Putnam City outdistanced the Knights, 216 yards to 40.

In this game Jack Thomas broke his wrist, Craig Busey injured his knee and both joined the growing list of injured. In the first down department, PC had 14 to 5 for the Knights. A total of 59 yards was piled up in penalties by the two teams.

Plowing through the Putnam City defense for a short gain is Knight fullback Willard Woods.

New Players See Action

NWC 0—JOHN MARSHALL 14

After stopping the Knights on their 44-yard line late in the first quarter, the John Marshall Bears drove 69 yards in four plays for a touchdown and extra point. Northwest again gave up the ball after a hard drive to the Bears' 29.

On their first play from scrimmage, the Bears made a 71 yard touchdown with a pass and run combination. The score remained 14-0 after this. Guided by Rick Simon at quarterback, the Knights marched to the John Marshall 26 before the Bears intercepted a Knight pass on their own 2-yard line.

After a field goal failure by John Marshall, the Knights reached the Bears' 9-yard line where they lost the ball on downs. The ball changed hands twice as NWC attempted to score, but the Bears intercepted another pass on their 10-yard line. Northwest had 15 first downs to 12 for John Marshall and outrushed them 195 to 168. However, the Bears piled up 139 yards passing to Northwest's 68.

NWC 6—DOUGLASS 14

Being beaten by both statistics and score, 14-6, the Knights gained their only touchdown in the first quarter as Rusty Christopher, Knight center, fell on a blocked Douglass punt in the end zone. After scoring drives by Douglass in the second and third quarters, Northwest came back and dumped Douglass punter, Michael Johnson, on his own 13-yard line with 10 seconds left in the final period.

Rick Simon's pass was knocked down in the end zone, stopping the clock with 3 seconds left. On the crucial final play, Dennis Klingsick juggled a pass in the end zone as the buzzer signaled the end of the game.

NWC 6—ENID 32

Knights were snowed under, 32-6, by the fullbacking of Enid backfield ace, Joe Poslick. The Knights were never seriously in contention despite the outstanding running of Baxter Case, who had been called up from the B-squad.

Northwest launched a 58 yard drive, following the Plainsmen's first touchdown before bogging down on the Enid four-yard line. Enid immediately struck back for three touchdowns in the second, third, and fourth quarters.

As the third period ended, Gray Atkins intercepted a Plainsmen pass and returned it 48 yards to the Enid 23-yard line. This set up the only Northwest touchdown as Willard Woods scored in the fourth quarter.

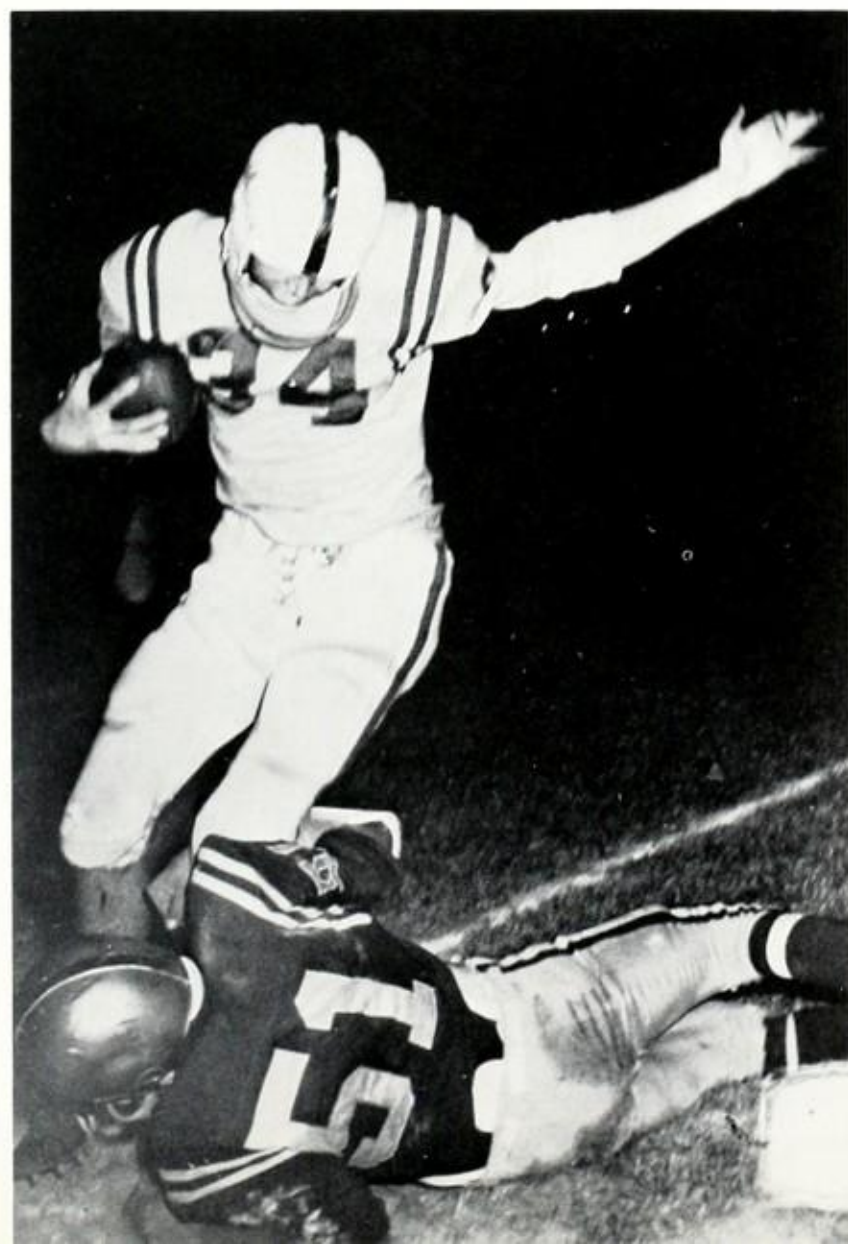

NWC 34—SHAWNEE 21

Northwest scored two touchdowns in the last five minutes of the game to topple Shawnee, 34-21.

In the fourth quarter with the Wolves ahead 21-20, Willard Woods scored from two yards out to give the Knights a 26-21 lead. The winning touchdown was set up when tackle Pat Bremkamp fell on a fumble on the Shawnee 29-yard line.

After nine plays, the Knights scored. The game was on ice for the Knights when they took possession of the ball on the Shawnee 19. Four plays later, Gary Sharpley scored from three yards out. Woods then rammed over for the two point conversion.

Willard Woods "tip-toes through the tulips" with a Grant player on his leg.

"He's behind you, Gary." Gary Sharpley is about to get his head torn off by a Grant General.

NWC 14—GRANT 13

Bill Grimes, given a second chance by a personal foul penalty against the Generals, scored for the two-point conversion which proved to be the deciding factor as the Knights edged Grant, 14-13 in their final game.

After two NWC drives were stopped on Grant's 5 and 16 yard lines, the Knights scored with a little over a minute left in the first quarter. Quarterback Craig Busey ran the ball 48 yards for the touchdown. The second Knight touchdown came when a Grant halfback fumbled on his own 18-yard line. Seven plays later, Grimes scored from the three-yard line; the two point conversion, via the second try, put the Knights in the winning bracket for the third time this season.

Future Promising for Upcoming Teams

Comprised of sophomores and juniors, the B-Squad, under new coach Wayne Goodman, finished the season with a 6-3 record. Their biggest victory was over the Dunjee "A" squad, 34-12. Dunjee, in class 8-B, won its conference championship.

Baxter Case and Jack Skaggs were top backs and the line was anchored by Tom Killup and Eddie Blalock. Jim Stacy and Jerry Huddleston were outstanding on defense.

During the season, the B-squad piled up an impressive figure in statistics. In the course of the season they scored 173 points to 88 for their opponents.

The C-squad, under the direction of coaches C. D. Carpenter and Phil Harriss, finished the '63 season with an impressive record of 9-1.

This was the second straight year that the freshmen brought the "Best Team in the City" award to Northwest. This was also the second time in school history that an eighth grader made first string C-squad. Taft Junior High student Mark Ackerman drew this distinguished honor.

With the aid of Steve Lowell, high scorer, and Jim Swartzendruber, the Knights ran over all but one of their opponents. The exception was the Douglass Trojans' C-squad, who edged the Knights by a margin of 14-8.

The Cross Country team ended the season with a record of two wins in their dual and triangular meets. Coach Leonard Marcotte's Knights had won the Mid-State crown four years in a row and this year seemed destined to repeat this performance. But with the Knights' top runner, Chris Randall, sidelined for most of the season with shin splints, they were unable to capture first place; they took second behind Putnam City.

Knights

No, it's not an octopus, it's Jim Ikard outstretching a Redskin as he grabs for the ball.

"OK, Kenny, you can hold it after the picture," promises Allen Eaker as he admires the championship trophy.

Losing only one starter from last year's squad, NWC boasted a strongly balanced team. Mid-State coaches, in the annual pre-season poll, put the Knights on the spot by picking them to finish number one in the conference. They didn't quite make it, but because of an unusual chain of events, they rated the number one title in state class AA rankings, while tying for second place in their conference.

In the season's opener, Coach Don Van Pool's Knights edged Northeast 67-65 in a non-conference tilt before traveling to Tulsa for their first big showing. Avenging last year's seventh place finish, the cagers brought home the Tulsa Hale Invitational Tournament trophy by defeating Tulsa Webster 78-50, Enid 66-61, and Tulsa Hale 58-56. Jay Hoberecht and Allen Eaker were voted to the first team all-tourney squad; Eaker was named Most Valuable Player.

The initial conference game with an inspired Douglass quintet was a heartbreaker. Northwest was defeated 68-64 despite John Scott's 21 points. The Knights recovered their poise to decisively down Harding, Grant, and Shawnee. In these games Dennis Klingsick, Eaker, and John Scott were high point men, respectively.

In the toughest game of the young season Midwest City came from behind to conquer the Knights 48-46 in three overtimes. This was surely the most spirited contest of the season as the Bombers trailed all the way, but spoiled NWC's conference title hopes by a spectacular spurt in the closing seconds of the game. The following night, the disappointed basketballers traveled to Putnam City where they suffered a 55-51 loss to complete the season's most disastrous weekend.

In true Knight fashion, the team came back to slip by Grant 45-44, and drub Capitol Hill 68-52. Junior center Mike Tate dropped in 20 points to lead all scorers as the Knights soundly trounced Putnam City 73-55, avenging their earlier loss.

Traveling the long road to Enid on a Tuesday night, Northwest kept its win-streak alive, beating the Plainsmen 57-41. All the reserves got to play in this game. Big Mike Tate had another good night as NWC squeaked by Douglass 64-63 in a fiercely competitive contest on the loser's court.

Shawnee proved to be a little tougher than expected; however, the Knights kept rolling as they chalked up a 58-52 win. Jim Ikard matched his high point total by adding 19 points to NWC's score. The third time proved to be a charm as the Knights minimized their earlier two victories over Enid, beating them by a 26 point margin. Scott was "the big gun" of the game, sinking 18 points.

"We're No. 1," roared the fans in the bedlam of OCU's fieldhouse as the Knights defeated MWC 48-44 and replaced them as the state's AA first ranked team. Coming into the game, Northwest was rated number three; Midwest City, number two.

Displaying the tremendous determination that earned him the MVP award in the Hale Tournament is Allen Eaker.

Junior center Mike Tate has no trouble tipping in two points for the Knights against Douglass. Avenging an earlier loss, NWC edged the Trojans 64-63.

But the Bombers had just beaten Norman (number one) the same week, and the determined Knights were not to be denied that coveted spot. Jim Hays and Ikard were the deciding factors of the game. Hays stole the ball, and Ikard hit the points in the closing seconds to bring the year's biggest triumph to Northwest.

The Knights were a bit flat after "giving it all they had" the night before, but managed to subdue Harding 59-43 by using fresh substitutes. Eaker added 12 points as high man.

Our cagers had no trouble scalping the Redskins of Capitol Hill with Klingsick coming off the bench to pour in 15 points. All the Knights saw action as the wide-margin score of 74-56 was recorded.

In the season finale, Northwest nabbed a 69-59 decision over Northeast, ranked No. 1 in state Class A ratings. The two No. 1 teams, who had met in their season opener, played through three quarters with the Knights holding a comfortable lead.

Then the revived Vikings clamped a full-court press on the Knights, who committed several mechanical errors, and the 20-point fourth quarter lead dwindled to 10 points.

Ikard took both scoring (17) and rebound (18) honors.

It was a memorable night for the four seniors, introduced before the game, who played their last game for the Knights: Allen Eaker, Jay Hoberecht, Dennis Klingsick, and Jim Hays.

Victory was never sweeter as Jay Hoberecht accepts congratulations from his best girl, Jan Hanraty, after Knights shocked the Bombers to end a happy Valentine's Day.

Victors join jubilant fans in chanting "We're No. 1!" after coming from behind to shade Midwest City. The number one game in the state was held in OCU's field house before an overflow crowd of 3500, which gathered over an hour before game time.

Wayne Austin, leading B-squad scorer, clears the path to the basket in the Knights' defeat of Capitol Hill.

Boasting the best record of any B squad basketball team in the history of Northwest, Coach Jerry Haynes' boys posted an impressive 18-0 record.

In overwhelming nine opposing schools' teams, each squad meeting defeat twice, the closest game was with Midwest City, 44-37; the largest margin was 38 points, when the B squadders romped Shawnee 65-27.

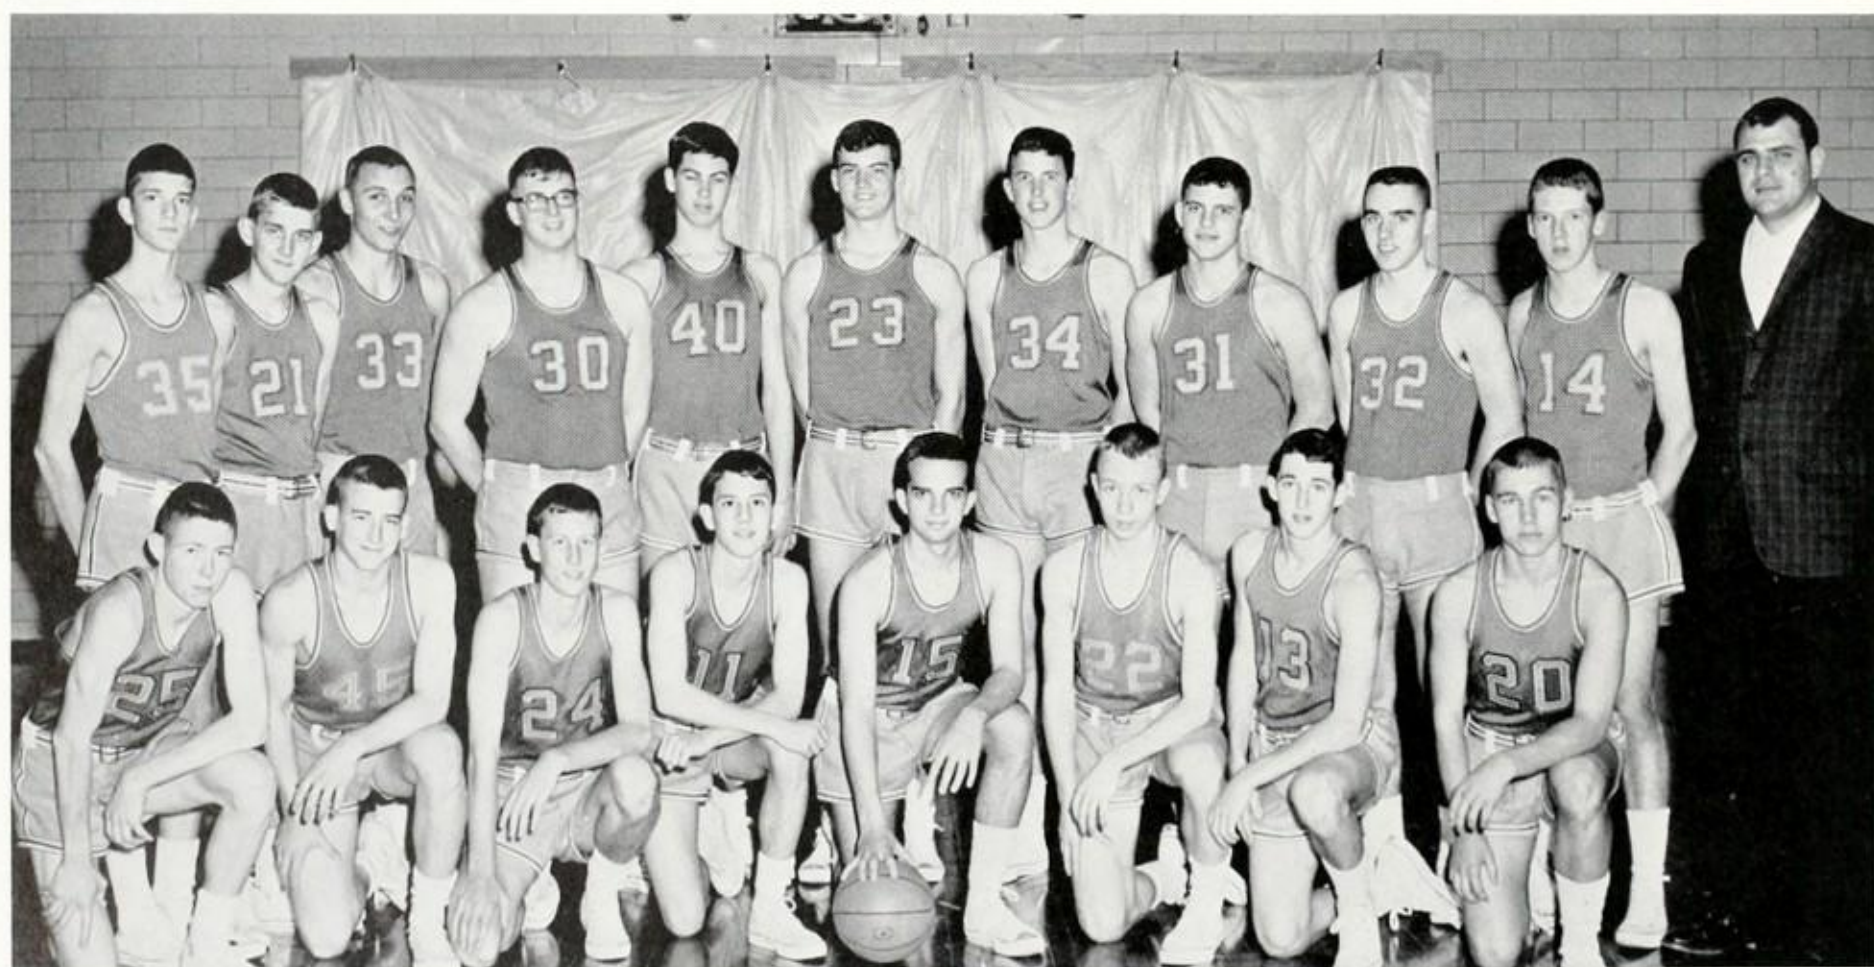

Coach Haynes commented that the unusual success of the team was due to the fact that the boys were unselfish in ball handling and shooting and were willing to work hard for the victories. In his opinion, Douglass, Midwest City, and Northeast presented the strongest competition.

High-point men included junior Wayne Austin, with 135 for the season, sophomore David Gibbs, 118, and junior Carl Jensen, 108. Top rebounders were Jensen, Austin, and Junior Bill Grimes, respectively, and sophomores Charles Ogden, Larry Gatewood, and David Gibbs.

High-ranking ball handlers were juniors Kenny Womack, Greg Crum, and sophomore Mike Page. Top defensive men were Kenny Phelps, junior, and Frosty Lloyd, sophomore.

Northwest's C-squad, coached by Phil Harriss, completed the season with a 5-6 record, but showed improvement by winning end-of-season games by a wide margin.

Van Bumpas Sets Record in Total Season Points

Junior Van Bumpas set a new school high of 96 total points for the season, surpassing Jimmy Robinson, whose 90 points in 1963 were unmatched in NWC's wrestling history.

Bumpas scored first place in the Edmond Festival, All-City, Geary, and Mid-State tournaments. In the opening round of the regional meet, he decisively beat Capitol Hill's Mike Reed in 29 seconds, outstanding time recorded in the tourney.

Larry Palmer paced the team in falls, scoring five in dual meets. Other firsts were recorded by Art South, in All-City; Jerry Huddleston and Palmer in the Edmond Festival, and Bill James, in Mid-State.

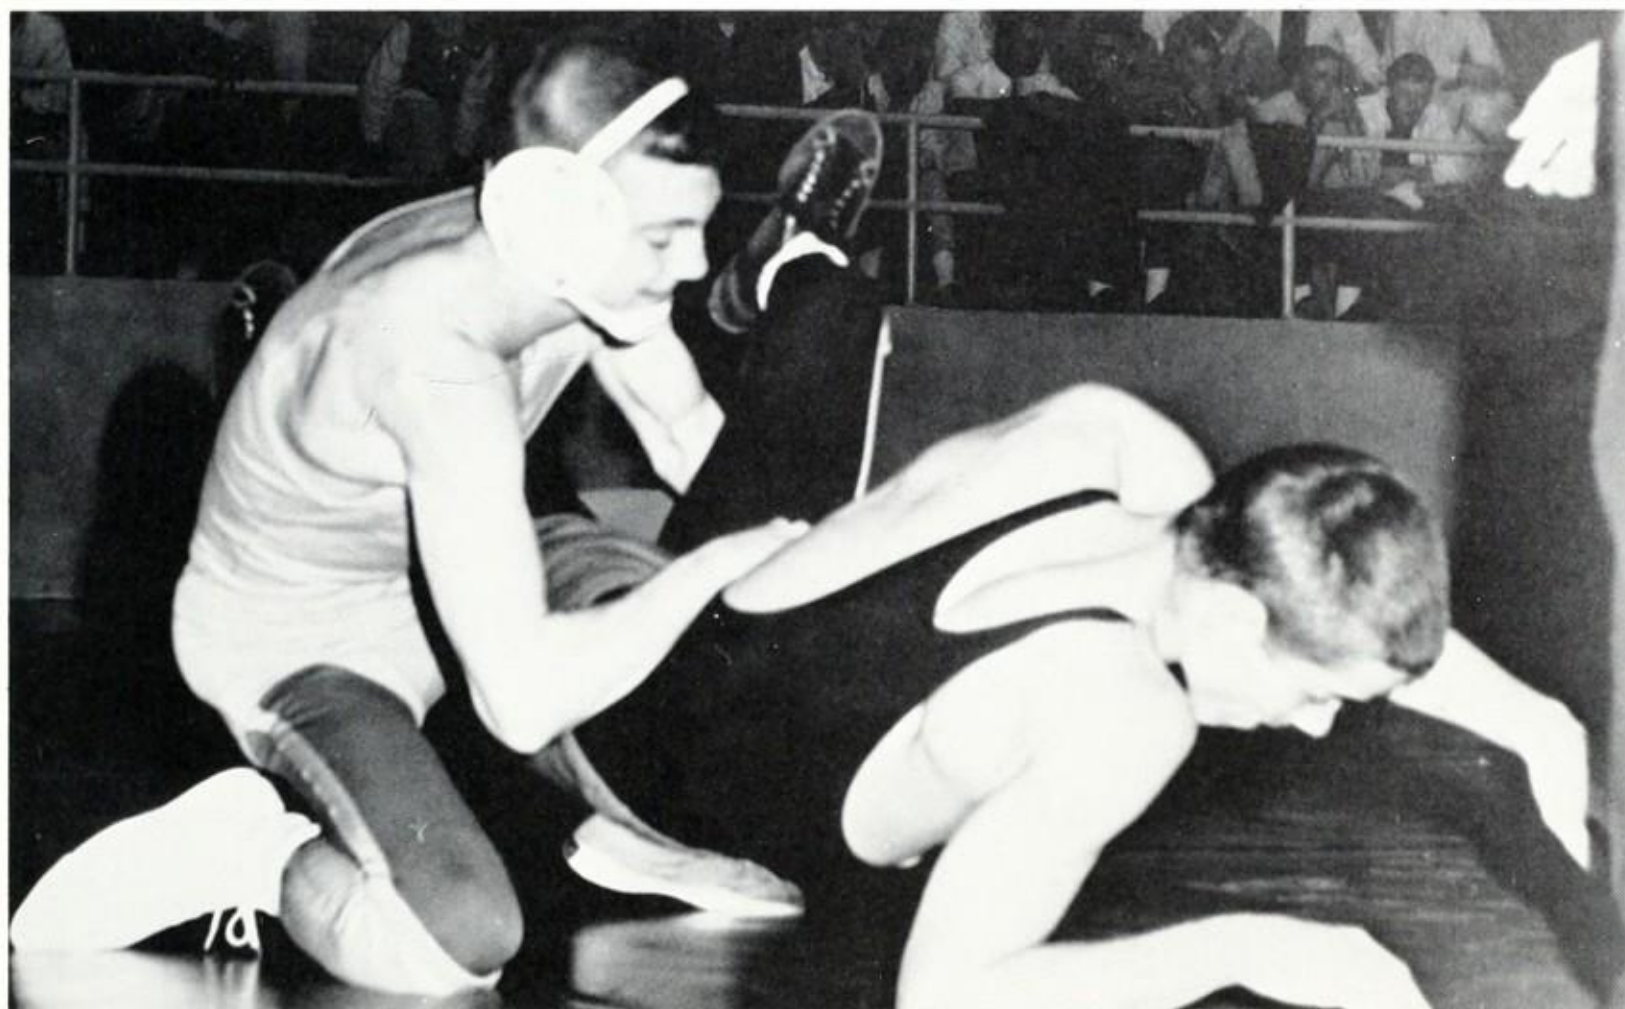

One of the season's highlights was the winning of the trophy at the Novice tournament at Hobart during the Christmas holidays. Responsible were the four champions: Mark Geller, Jim Garrett, Palmer, and Andy Husky.

The Knights ranked third in Mid-State, finishing behind Grant and Putnam City, regarded in pre-season ratings as top teams in the state. However, the Knights moved ahead of both teams in regional competition, placing fourth out of nine teams. John Marshall, Edmond, and Norman occupied the top three positions.

Eight boys qualified for the state meet: Bumpas, South, James, Garrett, Palmer, Huddleston, Richard Barker, and Husky.

Swimmers Take Third Conference Title

Mid-State championship for the third straight year was claimed by Knight swimmers, scoring 88 points in their final competition. Junior Dave Whytlaw took first in two events, diving and 400 yard freestyle; Joe Millar was tops in the 100 yard freestyle; and the relay team swam to victory.

Although Northwest won five and lost five dual meets, and came out behind Harding in the City meet, they set two records. Joe Millar swam the 100 yard freestyle in a record breaking time of 55.2, and the freestyle relay team, composed of Mark McGee, Gene Smith, Jack Thomas, and anchorman Millar, broke a city record of 1:41.3 which they had set last year; their new time is 1:40.9.

Dave Whytlaw contributed substantially to his team's standing, taking first in both City and Mid-State in diving and the 400 yard freestyle.

Dropping their first two meets to Harding 64-31, and Tulsa Memorial, 65-30, Knights met their first conference foe, U. S. Grant, and walloped them, 63-32.

An outclassed Capitol Hill team was left in the Knight's wake, 84-10. Next, the Trojans of Douglass were drowned in a barrage of first places by NWC swimmers, leaving the victors 3-0 in conference meets.

Knights were stopped by perennially tough Ponca City 54-40 before being subdued by John Marshall 47-38.

Midwest City proved a little tougher than previous Mid-State foes, but NWC managed another win, 52-43, before Harding swam past them 69-26. The last meet with Enid on the regular schedule featured outstanding team effort, and the Knights defeated the Plainsmen 50-45.

Depth of the Knight team was too much for the rest of the field in the final Mid-State meet as top performances were turned in by seniors swimming for the Knights for the last time: Thomas, Millar, McGee, and Stan Rathjen.

Fifteen Sports Fill Intramural Schedule

Fifteen sports were included on the agenda of the intramural program, sponsored by the Student Council. Tennis coach David Hoke served as faculty director; Chris Randall and Jonny Foster were Student Council committee chairmen. Names of intramural winners were placed on the two newly purchased plaques which were hung near the student store. First and second semester winners were listed.

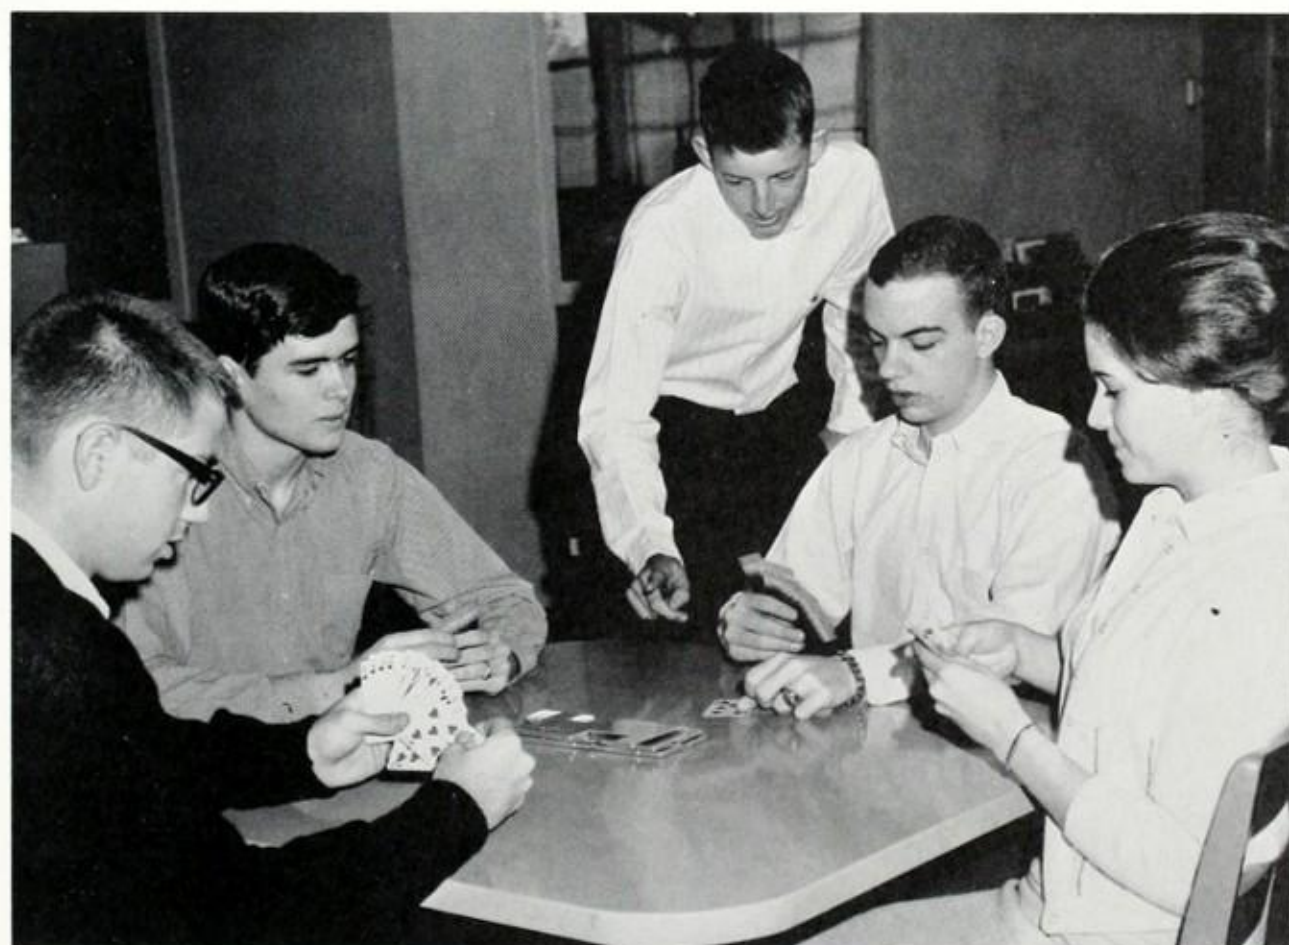

Competition began in September with football. Robert Roark's Used-to-Be's (ex-footballers) were champions. Junior girls got into the act by defeating the seniors in touch football 12-6. Susan Morgan captained the victorious girls' basketball squad. Leading NWC bowlers were Betty McNeil, junior, and Dean Wertz, senior.

Dean Bawcom and Judy Just paddled their way to boys' and girls' ping-pong championships. Judy combined her skill with Richard Perry's to win mixed doubles. Perry captured another title as he defeated his badminton teammate, Jonny Foster, in the tourney's climax for the singles title.

Bridge experts Roby Davidson and Janet Riley took honors in bridge while Roger Dabney vied successfully for the school chess title. Tennis, track and golf occupied sports-minded Knights during April and May.

NW Sportswomen Record Banner Year in Sports

Sportswomen recorded a banner year by producing a district championship softball team as well as setting city records in swim meets.

Coach Nancy Pierson's softball team opened its season by overwhelming John Marshall, Classen, and Harding by scores of 17-7, 15-0, and 26-6, respectively.

The team's success was due mainly to exceptional pitching by Ellen Howard and leading hitters Dianne Busch, Susie Phillip, Kris Harry, Linda Myers and Vickie Norick. Double plays, home runs, and an alert infield contributed considerably.

An inexperienced volleyball team won but three games; Marcia Clark received the game's outstanding award for her skill and sportsmanship.

Splitting an eight-game schedule with four wins and four losses, NWC's basketball team defeated Classen, Southeast, Capitol Hill, and Central. Mainstays in basketball, as in volleyball, were Kris, Marcia, Linda, and Susie. Other letterwomen included Dianne Busch, Rena McCoy, Mary Lou Smith, and Judy Just. Kris was selected outstanding player.

Swimmers splashed to top ratings under the supervision of Coach Margie Smith. Cindy Green set a new record when she won first place in city competition in the breaststroke. The 100 yard medley relay team, composed of Sherry Sheehan, Jeanie Thornton, Sharon and Cindy Green, also broke city records as the team amassed 65 points; Harding placed second with 42 points.

Other first place winners included the 100 yard freestyle relay team. Sharon Green was awarded the medal for being the outstanding swimmer in the city meet.

A recap of these meets, as well as spring sports, will be included in the summer supplement.

O-Clubs Stress Service

Primarily a service club, the Girls' "O" Club is composed of girls who earn a letter in at least one sport.

Money making projects held this year included two candy and two bake sales. Proceeds from the sales helped finance the club's annual weekend trip in May.

Traditional is the club Christmas party. This year orphans from a local home were guests at the party.

Two initiations were held: January 16, first semester letterwomen were initiated at a dinner at Val Gene's; second semester initiation was held during the weekend trip at Western Hills Lodge.

"OH, NO! we forgot the ping pong ball!" gasps Judy Just, center, to Diane Busch and Vickie Norrick as they are getting ready to leave for their annual "O" Club trip. This year the girls went to Western Hills Lodge May 15.

"O" Clubbers share operation of the concession stand for home games with the Girls' "O" Club. Steve Simmons seems to be selling his share of cokes.

"O" Clubbers started the year by selecting five senior girls as candidates for All-Sports Queen. Those honored were Joan Austin, Emily Brogden, Carolyn Meek, Jan Turner and Barbara Walk. Coronation was held on November 1.

An assembly featuring a speaker from the Fellowship of Christian Athletes was sponsored by the "O" Club in December.

Initiation for football and cross-country lettermen was held at a banquet January 4. Also formally initiated were those boys who lettered in spring sports last year. The officers were installed at this time. Special guests were the administration, coaches and the two exchange students.

Class Loyalty

Loyalty Runs Deep in Close-Knit Senior Class

We weren't given pre-enrollment forms this January, and it made us oddly thoughtful for several days. The watery blur of graduation, the future, suddenly straightens, solidifies. The outlines are now distinct; only the core is blank.

The past alone is real, and at times such as these, it bears examination. "... I remember, I remember ..."

... the revealing, forthright communication we experienced at the 1961 NASC Conference. The assemblies were nice, but the real understanding came afterwards, when we met in groups to exchange ideas, hear of customs in other cities. "... Really? You don't wear tennies?"

"... Do not open the test booklet until you are told to do so." The familiar IBM test sheets and "two sharpened, soft-lead pencils" became all-important as they pointed the way to our future. We trudged through PSAT's, NMSQT's, ACT's, SAT's, and they were all alike—exhausting.

... tears of exhilaration blended with disappointment as Knights battled courageously for last place in Mid-State football.

... unforgettable friends we found in Ted Hansen and Wally Koeneke, the only boy exchange students in our years at NWC.

"... V-I-C-T-O-R-Y, that's the sophomore—junior—senior—battle cry!" Others might have disagreed, but we knew we always out-yelled the rest. Loyalty runs deep in this close-knit class; we never lost a paper drive—or our spirit.

... the carefully casual trivia that set us apart: drop rings, sockless feet, 409's, marimekko dresses, double-bubbles, flips, elbow patches, suspenders, shifts, "Long Tall Texan," madras plaid, endless elephant jokes, hootenannies, church keys, the ill-fated New Orleans trip, the Ray Charles cult, coffeehouses, the fever, the Mafia, Stella.

Our class had personality, idiosyncrasies. We had our sayings: "Forget that." "Well, all right." "Listen, even." "That's wrong." "Might as well, can't dance."

We had our song:

If we ever graduate,
We'll go out and celebrate.

La de da, we are the senior class,
La de da, we are as cool as grass,
La de da, and we hope we will pass,
La de da, la de da, la de da.

Hear those sirens, see those lights—
Seniors goofed again tonight.

We have pulled some crazy stunts—
We were even freshmen once.

Give a shout and give a cheer—
Our senior year is finally here.

Squires Face Future With Courage and Vision

We, the class of '65, standing midway on the path to Knighthood, embrace the past with fond remembrance and face the future with longing. We look back with pride on our achievements and gaze forward with anticipation to the lofty heights of Knighthood as we advance toward its shining light.

Climbing the trail blazed by Knights of old, we accept eagerly their challenge to carry on the emblem of proud Knighthood as they have done with victory and honor.

It can only be in the distant future that we forget the emotions of our junior year—the pride in our organizations and activities which excelled all past years in the school's history—the indignation when the fountain head we had learned to cherish and respect was disfigured by the colors of a rival school—our class spirit which soared over the defeat of the confident seniors in the Jr.-Sr. Girls' Football game and remained high even when the number of varsity defeats outnumbered the victories—and the disbelief and sorrow over the tragic assassination of our beloved President John F. Kennedy, whose courageous strides toward world peace and whose martyred death renewed our zeal to finish the task he set for us.

Our bewilderment after taking the National Merits was soon overshadowed by the excitement over long awaited class rings and the prom in which we took so much pride in planning for the soon-to-graduate seniors. And then came the realization of our changing position as our friends were elected to places of leadership for the coming year—Our year.

With the passing of the sword passes not only the traditions and dreams of the past, but the responsibilities and goals of the future.

With courage and vision, inherited from our predecessors, we, the Squires of today, have grown in this tradition of Knighthood worthy to become the Knights of tomorrow.

"Are you sure we have enough to decorate Kimbo's?" Dave Elder, sgt. at arms; Barbara Sigmon, treas.; Suzy Meister, sec.; Bryan Maurer, pres.; and Craig Busey, v. pres., prepare for the long-awaited event.

Status Comes Slowly — Heralds Forge Ahead

After an exciting freshman year of introduction to Northwest Classen's customs and traditions, we returned to school this year as happy, hopeful Heralds.

Status comes slowly, we found, in this competitive, challenging school. Standards are unbelievably high; we gained respect for the academic excellence which prevails here. However, we found that the learning process can be fun. Pantomimes in speech classes, acting out Julius Caesar in English, and taking field trips in science and social studies proved entertaining as well as educational.

No one could say that we weren't good sports fans as we helped our football boys carry their crutches this year. We joined in whole-heartedly in buying the Shield, AFS candy,

Red Cross donuts, and game tags.

We took our growing responsibilities seriously, giving a great deal of attention to Student Council business, school campaigns and elections. Pep clubs and service club projects added spice to our daily routine.

Always we plan and look toward the future. As we approach the halfway mark in our life at NWC, we take stock of ourselves and our accomplishments. We feel that our class has made a substantial contribution.

Northwest Classen Heralds approach Knighthood as did Heralds of ancient lore. They rise from humble Pages to Squires and thence to Knights. As we anticipate becoming a Squire, we look back with pride and satisfaction to this year.

Pages Make Impact on NWC

Filled with eager anticipation and a certain amount of awe, we launched our careers at Northwest Classen by participating in Orientation Day. How impressed we were with the "big operation" here as we listened intently to explanations by SC prexy Robert Roark and other organization representatives.

Contagious was the school spirit pervading the patio at the "Howdy Mixer" where upperclassmen made a point to be friendly. The first nine weeks, filled with class elections, club meetings and our first pep rally, swept by quickly.

Our first report cards forcefully reminded us that there was a definite transition from junior to senior high and that we had to be on our toes to keep up the pace. The Shield became our calendar; we didn't want to miss a thing.

Homecoming was memorable because it featured the first coronation ceremony we'd seen, although we'd heard so much about them. "Life with Father" was the most impressive play we'd seen. We could spot the football players in the halls by their crutches.

We learned to take the bad with the good, to give and take in daily relationships with classmates. Our advisories, where all grade levels are represented, were helpful in learning to understand the problems and ideas of upperclassmen.

Our first year was a great experience and we can hardly wait to enroll next year as full-fledged Heralds!

Discussing problems at an early morning session are freshman class sponsors: Miss Barbara Sethney, Mrs. Judith Garrett, Miss Jo Alice Hendricks, Mr. Leonard Ogle, Mr. Don Gardner, Mrs. Ola Mae Oakes, Miss Janet Cooper, and Miss Janet Harper. Not pictured are Mr. Sidney Ohmart and Mr. John Platt.

"5, 4, 3, 2, 1-0, Blast off!" Directing freshman class business are its officers: Janie Jacobson, treas.; Gloria Lundien, v. pres.; Linda Moy, sec.; John Musgrave, sgt. at arms; and Chris Southard, pres.

THE EMBLEM OF PROUD KNIGHTHOOD

Terrye Newkirk

Lost among the fragile dreams of youth,
We hardly note the steady beat of time,
But vainly chase the night's elusive truth,
Acting out illusion's pantomime.

Careless of the falling crystal hours,
We catch at wispy veils of Love and Hate,
And glancing at contentment's sequined flowers,
Are lashed by indiscriminating Fate.

As gold and purple pawns upon the board,
We play at Life's surprising game of chess,
Charging with imaginary sword
The flighty, silver phantom of success.

But when the mad confusion disappears,
We shall preserve the emblem of these years.

March 1, 1964

Dear Knights,

From idea to book is a long way, and few students realize how far it is until they actually work on a yearbook.

Last fall the Round Table staff decided that this book should try to do two things: record a complete, accurate history of the year and express the students' deep respect for Northwest Classen in the theme, Emblem of Proud Knighthood.

For the first time, the Round Table will include a sixteen page summer supplement covering spring sports and graduation activities. It will be mailed directly to the students from the publisher soon after July 1.

It would be impossible to acknowledge all the willing assistance we have received in producing this book. We wish to express special thanks to Principal J. Frank Malone, who was always helpful and understanding when we went to him with problems, Mr. Barclay Curtis, our consultant with the Taylor Publishing Company, the Wagner Studio, Curtis Studio, A. Y. Owen, freelance photographer, Mrs. Walter L. Sutton of Meyers Photo Shop, and Mrs. Howard Lamb, who provided shelter and encouragement for staff members.

But most of all we thank the 3,000 students of Northwest Classen for making the Round Table possible.

Sincerely,

Alice Hiniker

you are one of the greatest guys I have met. (That's the line everybody uses!) Really, Steve, I wish I were like you & could say something funny, but I'm not, so I'll have to be serious.

Steve, you'll never realize how much your friendship means to me. You were one of the few ^{friends} I had left after Randy & I broke up. Thanks. It really counted. You are one of the few people I can come to with my problems. (Believe me, I have quite a few.)

I'll never forget all the fun we had together. It ~~seems~~ kinda funny for us to have gone together. The last ending was mean! (SHARON!) I was a little upset about that! Oh, well, I guess it happens to the best of us. (I can't forget me & Glad.) Well's forgiya know, Stevie, we have really had a lot of great times together. It doesn't seem too long ago that we were walking around ~~the~~ Will Rodgers park together at the Peppette picnic. That was 2 years ago! And the Cygnet banquet. you were going with Linda & I was going with Kirk. (Humm!)

There isn't enough room to tell you what a great athlete you are. I hope you continue in sports----- they'd be lost without Story book characters, Raggedy Ann and Randy, were portrayed by Ann Gibbs and Randy James in the annual DE Talent Show, May 1.

"But my barber's on strike." John Culbertson's impersonation of Forrest Roller added spice to the DE Talent Show.

Charlie Alsbaugh cavorts in the ballerina chorus line which highlighted the Talent Show.

Gala Events Mark the Final Whirl

"Carnival Time," one of five suites created by modern dance students, was performed by Marcia Linn, Linda Simms, and Sheryl Carter. NWC's first modern dance pageant was presented April 3.

The final whirl found the atmosphere in Knightland charged with anticipation and excitement as seniors prepared for the rush of end-of-school activities, and underclassmen awaited vacation and the satisfaction of progressing to the next grade.

Everyone seemed to share the feeling that the spring of '64 was rather "special" at NWC. New honors for Knightland were announced daily on Central Sound.

Mr. John Paden, biology teacher, was chosen first Northwest and then Oklahoma City "Teacher of the Year," placing him in competition for the title of state's outstanding teacher next fall. Senior Jean Taylor was named City Girl of the Year by the Northside Business and Professional Women's Club. The Shield received Highest Honors in the state school newspaper contest, and the band was one of seven bands invited to play at the National Music Directors' Convention next fall. Athletic teams achieved spectacular success.

As spring events unfolded, everyone agreed that school life was never better. Ample proof was offered of Mr. Malone's oft-quoted statement, "We are satisfied with nothing but the best for Northwest."

Culminating "Spirit Week" (March 9-13) was the coronation of Mr. Purple and Miss Gold, Lynne Hardin and Allen Eaker, at a pep rally before school in the gym. Majorettes and cheerleaders participating in the festivities were (Kneeling) Linda Voegelien, Marcia Kosted, Sharon Wilson, Carol Pickens, Lee Ann Welch, and Beverly Wilkison. (Standing) Kay Lewis, Janis Nowlin, Barbara Walk, Jan Turner, Lynne and Allen, Carolyn Meek, Cindy Williams, Cindy Patterson.

'Spirit Week' Climaxed by Coronation

Marsha Moore and Jim Blackburn help launch Dogpatch Week as they attend the annual picnic at Will Rogers Park April 27. WKY's Big Mike provided music.

Everyone went to the school's first book fair, held here the first week in April. Sponsored by Student Council, book sales surpassed 3,000.

Admiring the school motto placed in the front hall in May are Mickey Law, Ted Smith, Pam Cole, Tom Mundy, Becky Barbee, Don Richardson, and John McGinty.

Senior Lynne Reynolds contributes to the library's "In Memorium" book collection in memory of the late Mrs. Ethel Gay, former assistant librarian. Lynne has served as advertising manager of the Shield for three years.

Spring Flies;

"Let me in, let me in!" clamor juniors Ruth Arens, John Clark, Sammie Vinson, Jeff Webb, and Tripp Fezler as they anxiously await their 1965 class rings.

"Instruments? What instruments?" I don't see any instruments," stutters Miss Brooks (Ann Gibbs) as principal Criag Busey reprimands her in one of their many skirmishes in the all-school play "Our Miss Brooks." Ridge Hooks and Marty McPheeters are apprehensive of the outcome.

Each Day Is Memorable

Susan Swick sells her fruit to Vickie Lout during the annual JCL Roman banquet.

Colorado's Garden of the Gods was one of the spots visited by Cryslurs' John Tatum, Alyson Hall, and Paula Straley on thier four-day singing tour to Colorado. The choir left May 30 on the trip.

Wonderful Memories Relived in Round Table

Following the distribution of Round Tables, the annual signature swing was held in the social center. Students also spilled into the patio, writing furiously in their friends' year-books.

Senior boys enjoy their spoof of cheerleaders' antics during senior assembly.

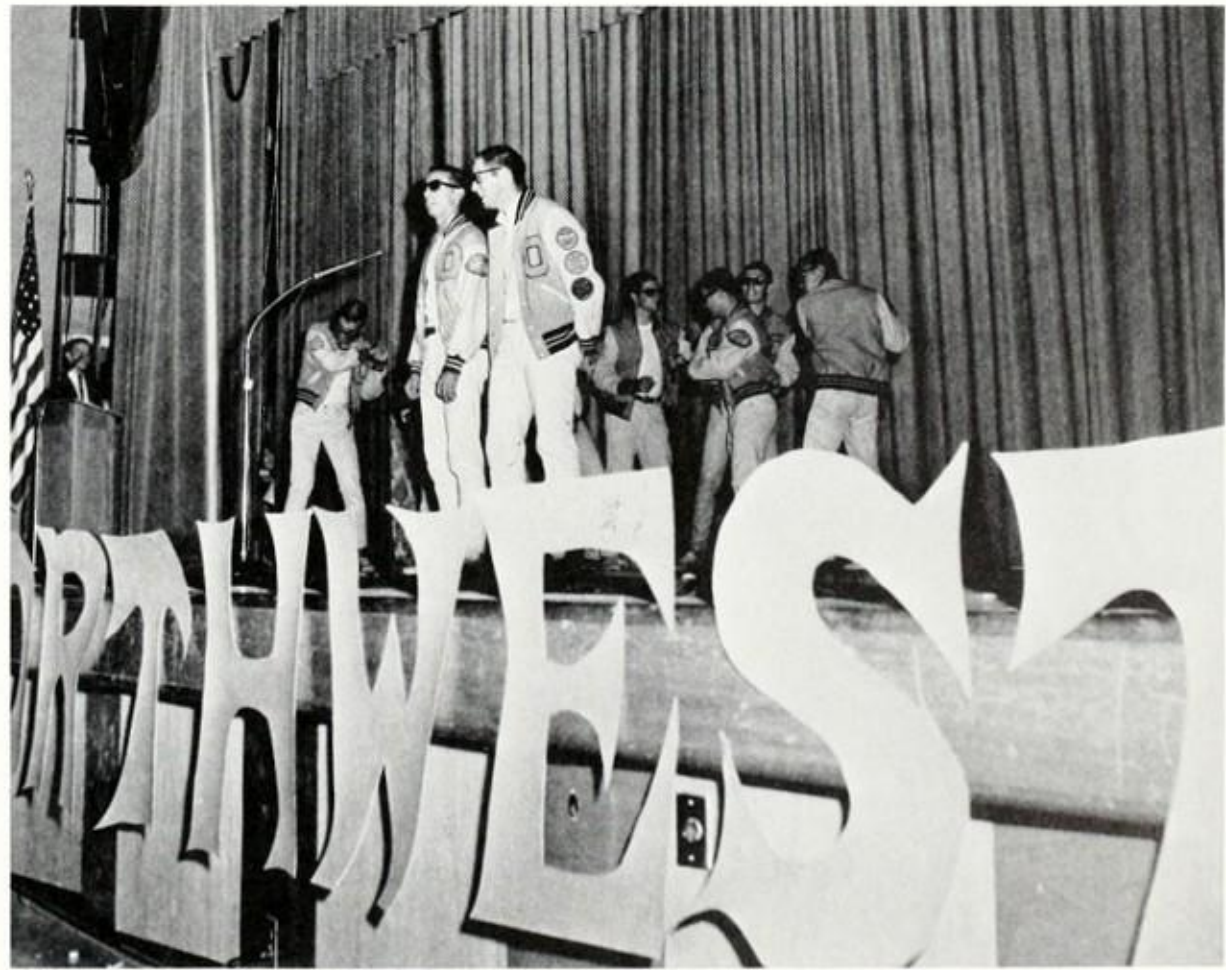

Decorating for the Junior-Senior prom can be lots of fun. Dave Elder takes a breather from the bandstand.

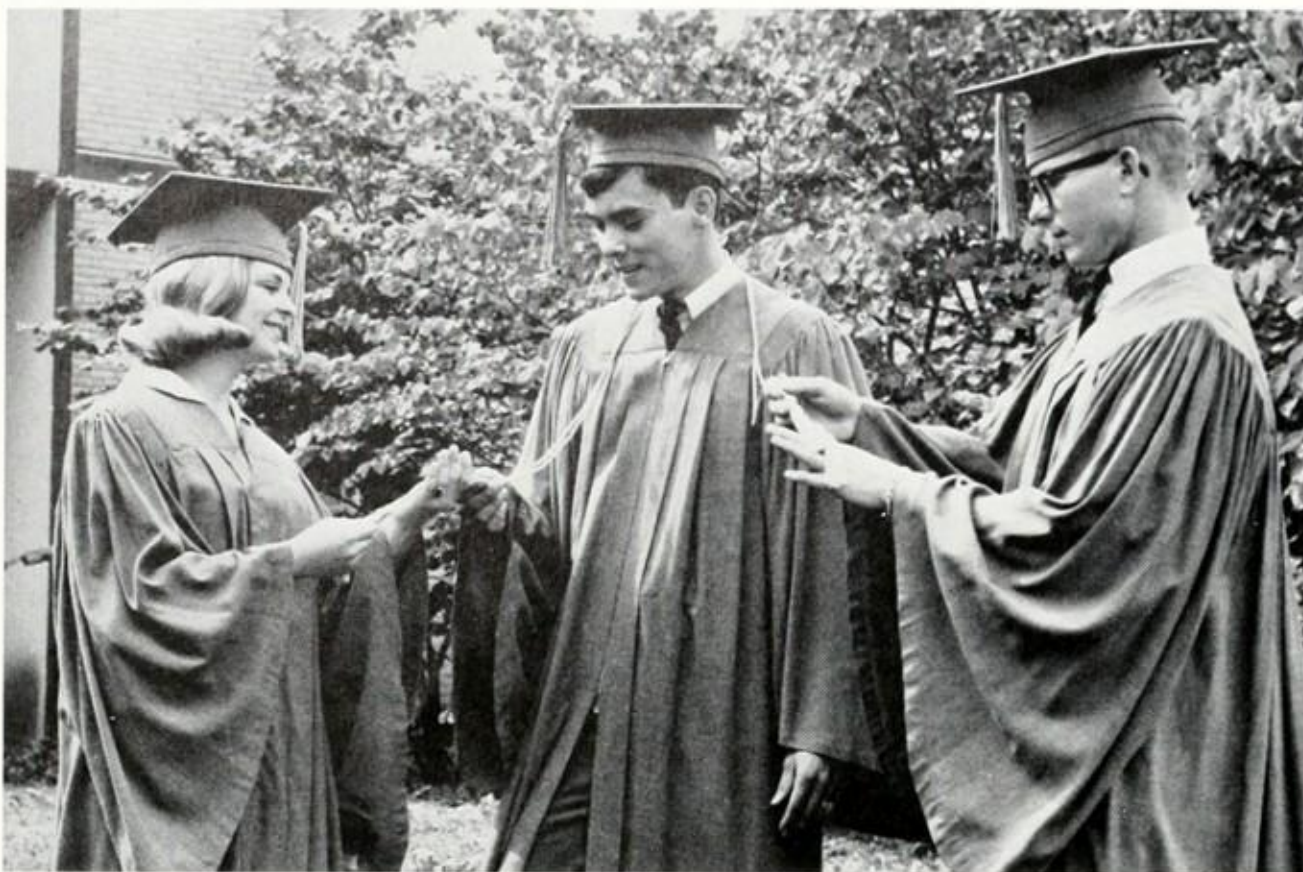

Couples chat between dance numbers at the prom, a wonderland in "Cherry Pink and Apple Blossom Time."

Prom Theme — 'Cherry Pink, Apple Blossom White'

"Be true to your school," Dean Wertz and Gray Atkins act as emcees at the senior assembly while the senior boys serve as the chorus line.

Showing off his "honor cord" to Ann Gibbs and Jim Cobb is Mark Creekmore, vice president of the Honor Society. This is the first year that society members have worn this symbol of distinction.

Graduation activities began for the 604 graduates Sunday May 24 with the Senior Sermon in the school auditorium.

Big Year Closes

Seniors listened attentively as Rev. J. Clyde Wheeler of Crown Heights Christian Church delivered the Senior Sermon, which concerned the life ahead of today's youth.

Our last days at Northwest Classen are filled with mixed emotions as friendships and school traditions take on added significance.

Decisions must be made as to future plans, college, and career choices. Every day we remind ourselves that we are reaching a milestone in our lives. The future suddenly looms before us as a question mark, and we seriously contemplate the implications.

Our last few days in Knightland are particularly precious because we know that our friends, some of whom have been our classmates since kindergarten, will be scattering to colleges throughout the country. We'll seldom see them, and things won't be the same. We'll make new friends, face new challenges and new horizons.

As we listened to Mr. Russell Holloway deliver the commencement address in Taft Stadium May 28, we realized that Northwest Classen has left an indelible mark on our lives; we hope that we can live up to the high standards that have been set for us here.

Seniors were treated to a preview of a future class reunion as part of the entertainment following their annual breakfast in the Skirvin Hotel's Persian Room May 28.

"Wonder how this would look on my cuff?" Allen Eaker ponders what to do with his extra patch.

Jim Ikard's shot is blocked by Midwest City's Joe Clanton in state finals. Ikard was named Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

Basketballers Win State Championship First Time

By defeating Midwest City 47-41 in the finals of the state tournament March 21, Knights won the state championship in basketball for the first time in school history, and Coach Don Van Pool received the distinction of being the first basketball mentor to be selected both State and Oklahoma City Coach of the Year.

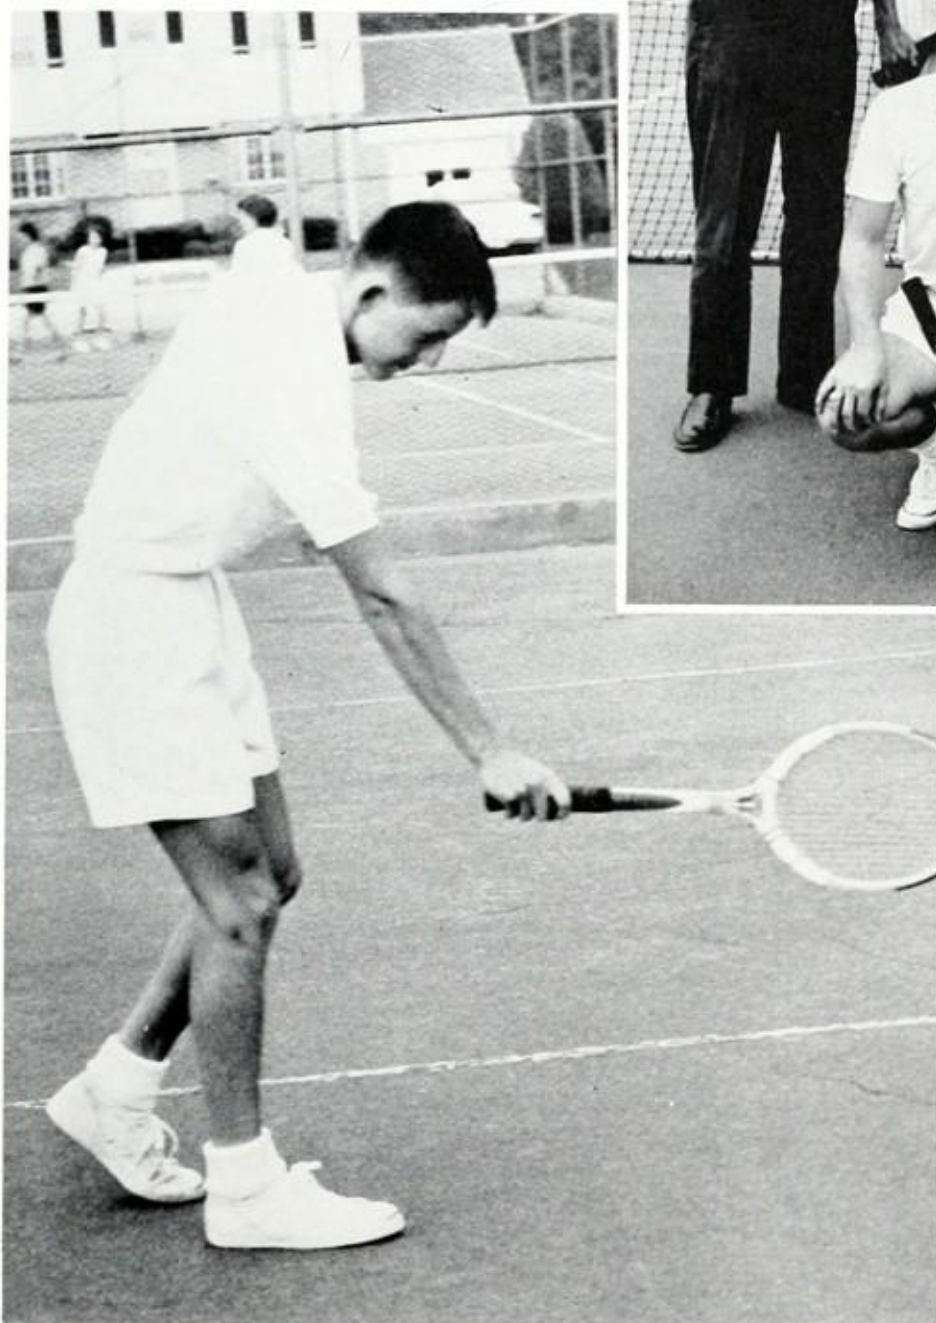

Jim Ikard was named to the first Mid-State conference and All-City teams; Allen Eaker made the second team and was chosen alternate on the All-State squad. Ikard was voted Most Valuable Player in the state tournament; Mike Tate earned a berth on the second tourney team.

Combining the scoring of Allen Eaker and Jim Ikard with the rebounding of Mike Tate and clutch free throws by Gary Kizziar and Jim Scott, the Knights led arch rivals Midwest City all the way in the tourney's finale.

The win marked the end of three hectic days of basketball for the Knights as they defeated Lawton 51-46, and Shawnee 48-34 on their way to the title.

This was NWC's finest season as the team finished with a 24-3 record and a 17 game winning streak.

Tennis Team Rates Title

Practicing for perfection all year resulted in Coach David Hoke's tennis boys capturing their fifth consecutive City championship, their fourth Mid-State title, and third state championship trophy at the State Class AA tournament held at OU May 1.

In state competition, Roger Dabney placed second in singles, Joe Walcher reached the second round, and the duo of Richard Perry and Jim Cobb repeated as the cream of the state's doubles crop for the second year in a row.

Contributing to the season's honors were AFS'er Ted Hansen, juniors Johnny Foster, Don Ward, Jay Suggs, and sophomore Alan McCarty.

Varsity netmen garnered trophies at the Capitol Hill, Wichita Falls, Texas, and Lawton Invitational tournaments.

Not to be outdone by netmen and basketballers, State champion Van Bumpas playfully displays the title he won at the state wrestling tournament by defeating his opponent 5-0. He also placed first in the Oklahoma City, Mid-State, Regional, and Geary tournaments.

Mike Fauks, Malcom Haney and Dick Pate watch as Knights' top scorer Mike Pulliam gets set to tee off.

Pulliam Tops in State as Golfers Finish 11-3

Knight golfers, under new coach Jerry Haynes, finished 11-3 in dual meets, bowing twice to Harding and once to conference foe Midwest City, and would have won the first place trophy in Mid-State competition except for a disqualification.

In the City meet, Northwest finished third behind champion Harding and Northeast. Led by sophomore Mike Pulliam, Knight linksmen finished eighth in the State AA meet. Mike had the distinction of being lowest scorer in the state meet with a 283 for 72 holes, and scored the most points of all Knight golfers during regular season play.

Other top golfers were seniors Mark Collins, Keith Franklin; junior Ron Kise, and sophomores Mike Fauks, Dick Pate, Dal McKinney and Jack Bergman. Since six of the top eight golfers will be returning, prospects look bright for next season.

All-Sports Trophy Award to NWC

Coach Davis and Rick Simon take infield warmup before the Capitol Hill game.

Ending a sparkling baseball campaign with a second place finish in state championship playoffs for Class AA schools, one of the strongest squads in school history finished the season with an 18-7 record and championships in the Mid-State Conference, Class AA Regionals, and Oklahoma Christian College Tournament.

The Mid-State All-Sports trophy was cinched for NWC for the fifth time out of the six times it has been presented. Putnam City won it in 1960.

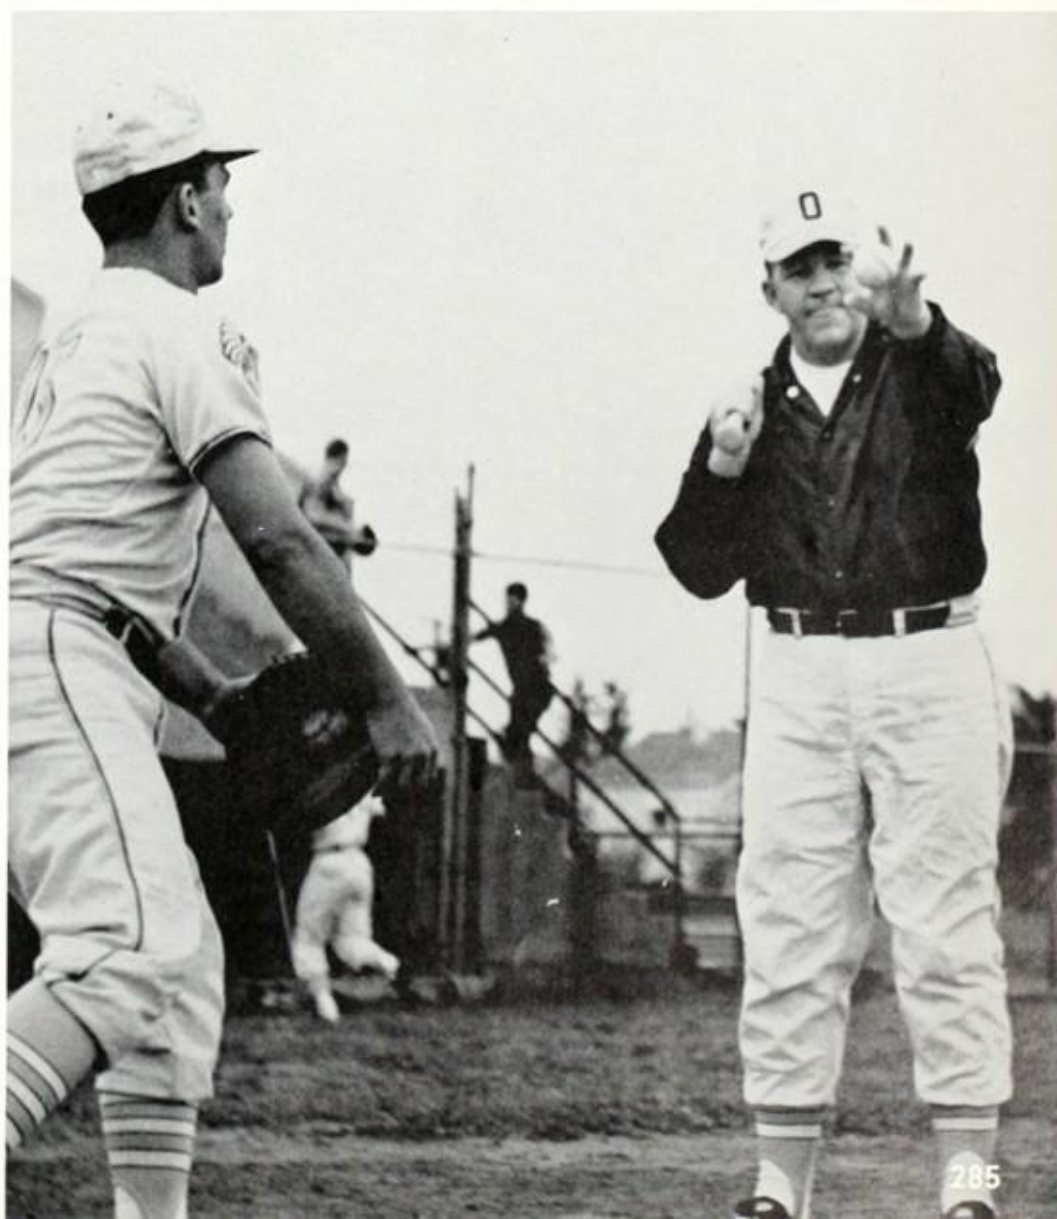

Senior Jim Hays was selected for the All-State team, while Hays, Rick Simon, and Bill Grimes were named to the All-City team.

In the state championship game, the Knights were defeated for the third time this season by Lawton 4-1. Pitcher Gray Atkins held the Wolverines scoreless until the third inning when a triple and a sacrifice fly scored a run for Lawton; they scored again in the fifth and twice in the eighth innings. The Knights scored their lone run on a triple by Jim Hays and a wild pitch. Allen Eaker broke up Lawton pitcher David Frost's no-hitter in the seventh with a single.

In the semifinal game, Bill Grimes struck out 16 and walked only one against the Tulsa Central Braves as the Knights won 4-0.

NWC finished 10-4 in conference competition. Opening the season with a 14-1 win over tough Capitol Hill proved that the Knights were going to be rough to beat. They followed suit by trouncing Douglass 9-0 with Jack Givens throwing a one-hitter.

A close victory over Grant put the Knights in the finals of the Regionals where they defeated the John Marshall Bears for the third time. This game featured a pitchers' duel between Bill Grimes and the Bears' Bill Dobbs.

Field Events Prove

Tom Melton, senior sprint star, crosses the finish line ahead of the Norman anchorman to win the City Invitational Track Meet.

Knight tracksters set three records, one unofficial, and equalled one during the course of the season.

Tom Melton set two individual records, 50.1 at the Norman Invitational Meet and 50.4 at the Central State Relays. The mile relayers, John Anderson, Alan Lukehart, Chris Randall, and Melton, set a new meet record at Central State of 3:25.1 and at the City Invitational of 3:24.2. An unofficial record of 3:24.2 was clocked during the Mid-State meet, while Joe Rankin and Bob Welch tied the conference record in the pole vault at 12 feet.

Nine returning lettermen: Rod Browning, Jim Fowler, Dennis Keim, Roger Kise, Alan Lukehart, Johnny Marsh, Tom Melton, Chris Randall, and Paul Smith added strength to Coach Rex Irwin's team. Additional support came from freshmen and sophomores.

Outstanding times clocked this year came in the 880-relay with times of 1:30.3 at Central State and 1:31.8 at the City Invitational. Melton also ran the 440 in 49.9 at Mid-State and 50.1 at the Norman Invitational. Melton qualified for the State Meet but failed to place as a result of a cramped calf muscle.

Proudly displaying the three trophies won at the Oklahoma City Invitational meet are the members of both relay teams: Chris Randall, Alan Lukehart, Tom Melton, Coach Rex Irwin, John Bado, Jim Fowler, and Willard Woods.

Straining on the first curve to get an edge on their opponents are Chris Randall and Tom Melton.
